With Crisis Center Vetoed, County Looks To Spend Fed. Funds

By Holly Crocco

With the proposed Putnam County mental health crisis stabilization center that was planned for Stoneleigh Avenue having been voted down by the Carmel Planning Board earlier this month, the County Legislature is now scrambling to spend $2.5 million in American Recovery Plan Act funds that were tied to the project so that it doesn't have to be returned to the federal government.

"At this point, with the ARPA deadlines, the money has to be spent by the end of this year," explained Putnam Finance Commissioner Bill Carlin at the Legislature's Feb. 11 Health Committee meeting. "So it's not going to be feasible to get another location, unfortunately."

Instead, he said the county needs to pivot to find an avenue to spend those funds.

Before any money can be reallocated, the county needs to "close out" its agreement with People USA, which is the organization it partnered with the plan the crisis center. According to Carlin, People

USA is owed money because it proceeded in this project with the county, in good faith, and is due reimbursement costs.

"And some day there may be a center, but it won't be now, and it won't be with ARPA funds," he said.

Once that contract is terminated, the county can focus on redirecting the ARPA funding.

"Unfortunately, the reallocation process this far down the path of ARPA means our choices are very limited," said Carlin. "We can only use it on projects that were already approved and incurred, and not closed out."

This means the county cannot come up with a new public health project.

"We will come to the Legislature probably next month... with a reallocation plan which likely will involve infrastructure, because that's the place that is going to be the most secure that will follow the law and allow us to achieve our primary goal, which is to spend all the

Philipstown Folks Seek 'Equal Protection' Law

Local activists packed the Philipstown Town Hall for the Town Board's Feb. 5 meeting to discuss proposed updates to the town's "equal protection resolution."

The town originally adopted a version of the resolution in April 2017, but with the recent civil unrest throughout the country and Immigrations & Customs Enforcement officers making arrests, a local citizens group called Joining Forces has submitted a stronger 2026 version of the resolution to the Town Board for adoption, along with a policy recommending actions.

The resolution states: "No Town of Philipstown department, officer, employee, or agent acting in their official capacity shall request or maintain information about or otherwise investigate or assist in the investigation of the citizenship or immigration status of any person unless such investigation or inquiry is required by state or federal law or by court order."

Further, it states: "They shall not assist or cooperate with any investigation, detention, or arrest by any agency enforcing federal immigration law unless such investigation or inquiry is required by state or federal law or by court order."

"I share the same fears you all have about this country," said Town Supervisor John Van Tassel. "I have been astonished by what is happening in Minneapolis. I began my career as a paramedic, and I believe in treating every person with the same care no matter their color, income, or immigration status. However, I have a legitimate legal concern about this resolution. I see it as a symbolic effort with no teeth. We have a responsibility to protect the Town of Philipstown and our employees from the possible consequences."

Newly-appointed Town Attorney Mary Kate Ephraim articulated her concern that the town could conceivably be infringing on the First Amendment rights of town employees by directing how they can or cannot respond to an ICE inquiry.

Councilwoman Judy Farrell, introducing herself as the daughter of immigrants, spoke in defense of

Brewster’s Crivelli Wins Section 1 Title

Brewster High School’s Derrick Crivelli won the boys’ giant slalom, slalom, and skimeister titles at the Section 1 skiing championships at Hunter Mountain on Feb. 10. Crivelli, a ninth-grader who in a field of 70 boys came in as the number-one seed in both the boys’ slalom and giant slalom, won both events and captured the coveted boys’ skimeister title for having the lowest combined slalom and giant slalom times.

Letters to the Editor

Seeking School Board Candidates

Dear Editor:
In 2025, the Town of Carmel Republican Committee endorsed candidates for school board. In Mahopac, that candidate slate nearly doubled the votes of their opponents. If you are a registered Republican and want to run for board of education trustee for either Mahopac Central School District or Carmel Central School District, send an email to carmelgopschool-board@gmail.com by March 15.

Fight Energy Rate Hikes

Dear Editor:
Mahopac families are in an affordability crisis. The cost of groceries, gas, housing, and taxes keeps climbing, and now NYSEG wants to hit our community with massive electricity and gas rate increases. For a lot of households here, this isn’t some abstract policy debate. It’s the difference between keeping up and falling behind.
I serve as a school board member, and I know firsthand how tempting it is to say, “Just raise taxes.” That’s always the easy answer. It’s also the wrong one. I’ve fought against tax increases because I believe families in Mahopac deserve leaders who make hard choices, not leaders who automatically reach for taxpayers’ wallets.
That’s exactly what we should be demanding from NYSEG.
We also need to be honest about how we got here. Albany Democrats pushed to close Indian Point with no real plan to replace that baseload power, and now families are paying the price for that reckless decision through higher and higher energy costs.
Instead of tightening their belts, finding real efficiencies, and making tough internal decisions, NYSEG is asking the state to approve huge rate hikes and expecting working families to just absorb the hit. For seniors on fixed incomes and small businesses already under pressure, that’s not manageable. It’s a breaking point.
Utilities aren’t just another business. They’re government regulated monopolies. People in Mahopac can’t shop around when the heat bill comes due or the lights are on the line. That’s why the Public Service Commission exists. Its job isn’t to rubber stamp whatever NYSEG asks for. Its job is to protect the public.

As a county legislator, I won’t just complain about this and move on. I’ll push for Putnam County to formally intervene in these rate cases, demand full transparency from NYSEG, and stand with other local governments to fight these hikes in front of the PSC. I’ll also support exploring options like community power programs that can give residents more control and more competition, not just higher bills and fewer choices.
If local school districts and town governments are expected to live within their means, then a massive utility company should be held to at least the same standard. Ratepayers shouldn’t be the automatic piggy bank for bloated costs, bad priorities, or policies that never seem to come with real accountability.
I oppose these rate hikes. Period. NYSEG needs to go back to the drawing board, make the hard decisions, and prove they’ve done everything possible before reaching deeper into the pockets of Mahopac families who are already stretched thin.
And the PSC needs to remember who it works for. Not the utility companies. Not the lobbyists. The people who live here.
Affordability isn’t a slogan in Mahopac. It’s a real, daily struggle. Our families deserve leaders who’ll fight for them, not pass the bill down the line and call it “necessary.”

Questions About Cell Tower Placement

Dear Kent Planning & Zoning Board Members:
I am writing to record my objection to the new cell tower proposed by Homeland Towers, which will be located near the intersection of Hortontown Hill Road and the Taconic Parkway. I was unable to attend the meeting in person Feb. 12.
I have several questions based on what I see on the Homeland

Towers website about its process:
What community outreach did the firm do besides put up a sign that fell over, across from one of the houses, and to notify people within 500 feet of the site? I didn’t hear about this from you.
What follow-up has the firm done to record any residential property value changes after the towers are put up? They may not be concerned, but we are.
What income/profit is the firm expected to generate after this proposed tower is built? What’s the ROI relative to the disadvantages? There must be revenue expected, or it wouldn’t be proposed.
I expect that answers will be provided to the taxpaying residents living in the vicinity.
The owner of the proposed site does not live in the Town of Kent, and in fact does not even live in Putnam County. What increase in property taxes will accrue to our town? Or will his property taxes be reduced due to the new use of the property?
A great deal of research and information is available regarding the negative impact of cell phone towers on local residents. These include negative health impacts and negative property value impacts. Would you want to live across the street from a new cell phone tower? If you would not, why would you agree to make your fellow residents live across the street from a cell phone tower? Are decisions for thee but not for me?
What net benefit(s), if any, does the town expect to receive from Highland Towers or the various carriers that would use the tower?
Another consideration is the thought of the unsightly tower rising well above the treetops along the beautiful Taconic. What an eyesore.
Finally, I call your attention to the inadequate town regulation that requires only a 500-foot radius for notification to residents. In this case, it appears that very few residents were notified due to our rural setting and large tax lots. And putting one sign up that promptly fell over, well, frankly, that’s insufficient notice. Same with the balloon test notifications. Even though I provided my email address (as recommended by the board) to the secretary after a board meeting last fall, I have not received a single notification from the town.
Thank you for your attention to this matter. I sincerely hope you will consider the feedback from the resident taxpayers.

Carmel Police Department recently arrested three people from Brooklyn who were stopped in Carmel with iPads, iPhones, and an AirPods Pro Max that were purchased fraudulently.

Carmel Police Charge Trio with Forgery & Impersonation

Three Brooklyn residents were arrested earlier this month in Carmel following an investigation into fraudulent activity and the unauthorized use of a rental vehicle.

On Feb. 1, a Carmel Police Department K9 officer on routine patrol responded to the parking lot of Skyline Towing for a report of a suspicious U-Haul van. Upon arrival, officers located a white U-Haul bearing Arizona registration occupied by two males and one female.

The individuals were identified as Jovenel Saint Jean Jr., Sariah Sammy, and Kahlil Patterson Jr., all of Brooklyn.

During the investigation, the subjects provided repeated inconsistent and deceptive statements regarding their travel and reason for being in Mahopac, said police. A consensual search of the vehicle revealed three new-in-box iPads, five new-in-box iPhones, and one new-in-box AirPods Pro Max – all appearing unused and in their original packaging – along with receipts indicating purchases that were fraudulently charged using the identity and financial information of a victim from Westchester, Ill.

Further searches of the subjects yielded two counterfeit Illinois driver’s licenses bearing false identities, as well as multiple stolen financial cards belonging to unrelated individuals, according to police.

Detectives subsequently contacted the rental company and confirmed that the U-Haul van was significantly overdue for return and that the occupants on scene were not authorized to possess or operate the vehicle at that time.

Saint Jean, Sammy, and Patterson were arrested without incident and charged with fourth-degree criminal possession of stolen property, criminal possession of a forged instrument, second-degree criminal impersonation, and third-degree unauthorized use of a vehicle.

All three were processed at CPD headquarters and released with tickets to appear in Carmel Town Court on a future date.

DWI Arrests

At about 2:10 a.m. Feb. 8, a Putnam County sheriff’s deputy witnessed a vehicle traveling westbound on Danbury Road in Southeast, swerving within its lane. A traffic stop was conducted and the operator was identified as Jorge Maldonado Zabala, 23, of Bedford. He allegedly showed signs of intoxication and was unable to produce a valid driver’s license.

Further investigation revealed that his license was suspended as a result of a prior driving while intoxicated incident.

Zabala was charged with first-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, a felony; DWI, and operating a motor vehicle with a blood-alcohol content of 0.08 percent or more, both misdemeanors; and multiple Vehicle & Traffic Law violations. He was arraigned in Southeast Town Court and released on his own recognizance.

At about 8:55 p.m. Feb. 8, deputies responded to the area of Peaceable Hill Road and Stone Ridge Road in Southeast for a report of a vehicle that had crashed into a snowbank. The operator was identified as Luis McRea, 40, of Southeast.

Deputies observed signs of intoxication and administered field sobriety tests, which McRea failed, said police. He was charged with aggravated DWI and DWI for having a previous conviction within the past 10 years, first-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, and first-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle for committing aggravated unlicensed operation in the second degree while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, all felonies; as well as multiple Vehicle & Traffic Law violations.

McRea was arraigned in Southeast Town Court and released on his own recognizance.

Mahopac Man Accused of Brandishing Gun at Bus Driver

A Mahopac man was arrested last week following a road rage/menacing incident in which he allegedly aimed a loaded gun at a school bus driver.

New York State Police at Hawthorne received a walk-in complaint Feb. 4 from a school bus driver who reported that, while driving on the Taconic State Parkway southbound near exit 3 in Mount Pleasant, the driver of another vehicle pointed a handgun at him.

In addition to the driver, a bus monitor and three children with special needs were on the bus at the time.

Following an investigation assisted by the Westchester County Real Time Crime Unit, the suspect vehicle was located later that evening traveling northbound on the Taconic State Parkway. Members of NYSP-Hawthorne and its Bureau of Criminal Investigation, assisted by the Troop K Community Stabilization Unit while assigned to the District Attorney’s Safer Highway initiative, conducted a traffic stop.

The operator, Michael Alarcon, 19, was found to be driving with a suspended New York State driver’s license and possessed a loaded handgun.

He was taken into custody and transported to NYSP-Hawthorne for processing and charged with second-degree criminal possession of a weapon for having a loaded firearm, and two counts of third-degree criminal possession of a weapon for having an ammunition-feeding device and defacing the gun for concealment, all felonies.

He was also charged with second-degree menacing, three counts of endangering the welfare of a child, and third-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, all misdemeanors.

Alarcon was arraigned in Mount Pleasant Court.

NYPD Sergeant from Putnam Found Guilty of Manslaughter

A New York Police Department sergeant from Putnam County was recently found guilty of second-degree manslaughter after throwing a cooler at a fleeing suspect in August of 2023, leading to the man’s death.

Sgt. Erik Duran, 38, pleaded not guilty during his bench trial, in which there was no jury – just a judge hearing the arguments and rendering the verdict.

He was convicted Feb. 6 by Bronx Supreme Court Judge Guy Mitchell and faces up to 15 years in prison. Sentencing is scheduled March 19.

Duran was also facing a criminally negligent homicide charge, which was waived.

He had until Feb. 10 to post $300,000 cash bail to remain out of custody until the sentencing.

Eric Duprey, 30, died Aug. 23, 2023, after he took off on a motorized scooter along a sidewalk in the Bronx, attempting to flee arrest after he had just sold drugs to an undercover officer.

Video shows Duran, who was a member of the NYPD Narcotics Borough Bronx Tactical Response Unit, throwing a picnic cooler at Duprey’s head in an attempt to stop him. Duprey was reportedly driving 30 miles per hour and not wearing a helmet when he was struck, which caused him to swerve and slide under a vehicle.

He later died from blunt force trauma to the head.

According to CBS News-New York, Duran testified during trial that he was trying to protect fellow officers, but the judge ruled that he had not done so properly. The defense claimed that other people would have been killed because of Duprey’s reckless driving, had Duran not stopped him.

However, prosecutors called Duran’s actions “reckless, unreasonable, and unnecessary.”

The case was prosecuted by New York State Attorney General Letitia James’ office.

Plans for 2026 Brewster Summer Music Series Underway

We may not believe it now, but summer is coming.

As such, members of the Town of Southeast Cultural Arts Coalition are busy planning for the sixth annual Brewster Summer Music Series. The first concert will kick off Wednesday, June 17 at 6:30 p.m., and performances continue each week through July 29.

The line-up of free Wednesday night concerts at the village gazebo is still being developed, but will feature bands from a variety of music genres. Back by popular demand, Bookends is scheduled to play at the July 1 concert. Last year, the band drew the largest crowd of the series.

Burke Energy has signed on as the first level-one sponsor of the season, and Suburban Propane is also a sponsor – but more donors are sought.

“We’re reaching out across the town and village in every way we can,” said BSMS Producer Katy Faivre. “Whether it’s $25 or $2,500, we know the more funds we raise, the better the concerts will be for the community.”

To become a sponsor, visit www.culturalartsco.com/brewster-summer-music-series.

Nutrition Corner

MS, RD, CDN

Quick Meals for Busy Nights

It’s about that time in the winter, when the weather has sufficiently complicated plans and you may be feeling overstretched. It’s easy to rely on takeout and quick restaurant meals at times like these. However, this comes with additional food and nutritional costs, which makes it a problematic approach. Instead, let’s strategize around easy meals that match busy nights.

Double duty prep: Make recipes like the one below that can be used for more than one meal by switching up the sides and flavor profile. This “nextover” approach lets you intentionally use some of what you cooked yesterday to reinvent a meal today. Slice crispy chicken over jasmine rice and top with an Asian inspired dressing or cube it over a greens with beans and defrosted, frozen corn for a Tex-Mex salad.

Grocery shop to match your calendar: Shop for food that matches the week ahead. Then you’ll have food available to put together an easy meal. This saves you money, reduces waste, and ensures you can easily build a nutritious plate. Go for microwaveable grain pouches and pre-washed veggies to add to a prepped protein for a quick meal.

Balance the plate: Sometimes we need to use frozen proteins to bring a plate together. And they may not be prepared exactly the way we wish they were. Remember, it’s still better than most take-out options. Pair a more decadent part of your meal with vegetables and whole grains to balance your plate and control less desirable attributes like sodium and saturated fat where you can.

Hazelnut-Crusted Chicken with Broccoli Gremolata Hannaford.com (3 Guiding Stars)

Broccoli transforms from side dish to lemony, garlicky topper for crispy chicken in this easy dinner. You can also swap out hazelnuts for almonds for an equally crunchy, nutty chicken breading.

- Ingredients:
- 1 (12 oz) pkg broccoli florets
 - ½ cup chopped parsley
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1 lemon
 - ½ cup + 3 tbsp olive oil, divided
 - 1 cup hazelnuts, chopped
 - 1 cup panko breadcrumbs
 - ½ cup all-purpose flour
 - 2 large eggs
 - 1 lb boneless, skinless chicken tenders

- Steps:
- To a food processor, add broccoli florets. Pulse until coarsely chopped. Add parsley, garlic and zest from lemon. Pulse until finely chopped. Add juice from lemon and ½ cup oil. Season with salt and pepper. Pulse a few more times, until combined but not a paste. Pour into a bowl and refrigerate until ready to serve.
 - Preheat oven to 375°F. In a shallow bowl, combine hazelnuts and panko. Season with salt and pepper and mix to combine. To another shallow bowl, add flour. In a third shallow bowl, beat eggs. Season both bowls with salt and pepper. Working with one piece at a time, dredge chicken in flour, shaking off excess, then dip in eggs. Coat in hazelnut-panko mixture, pressing to adhere. Transfer to a parchment-lined baking sheet.
 - Heat remaining 3 tbsp oil in a 12” skillet on medium-high. Add chicken and brown, 2 minutes per side. Transfer chicken to prepared baking sheet and finish cooking in oven, 10 to 12 minutes, until cooked through. Spoon broccoli gremolata over chicken to serve.

Grilled Chicken Bundt

(Family Features)
Grilled Chicken Bundt

- Ingredients:
- 4 potatoes
 - 2 carrots
 - 8 Brussel’s sprouts
 - oil
 - 2 tbsp garlic powder, divided
 - 2 tbsp onion powder, divided
 - 2 tsp salt, divided
 - 1 whole chicken (4-5 pounds)
 - 1/2 stick butter, softened

Directions:

Heat grill to 350 F with one burner off for indirect heat.

Cut potatoes, carrots and Brussel’s sprouts into bite-sized pieces. Drizzle with oil and mix in 1 tablespoon garlic powder, 1 tablespoon onion powder and 1 teaspoon salt; set aside.

Rub chicken with softened butter, remaining garlic powder, remaining onion powder and remaining salt.

Place some veggies in bottom of bundt pan. Place chicken on top of chimney or tube of bundt pan. Fill pan with remaining veggies.

Place pan over indirect heat and grill 1 hour, 30 minutes, or until chicken reaches internal temperature of 165 F.

Putnam Historian’s Office Honors Marian Anderson

From the Putnam County Historian’s Office

This Black History Month, we are proud to once again honor a remarkable woman who once called our region home. Marian Anderson – one of the greatest contraltos of the 20th century – was a familiar presence here, even commuting to and from the Village of Brewster train station as she traveled the world.

We’re highlighting a treasured volume from our research library, “Marian Anderson: A Singer’s Journey” by Allan Keiler.

In 1939, Anderson made history with her powerful performance at the Lincoln Memorial, helping to set the stage for the modern civil rights movement.

Shortly thereafter, around 1940, she and her soon-to-be husband purchased a 12-room Victorian farmhouse and surrounding acreage just over the state line on Joe’s Hill Road. They named it Marianna Farm, and it became her refuge between international engagements.

Among her local circle of friends were Milltown area residents, author Rex Stout and his wife, Pola, a noted textile designer; as well as Academy Award- and Tony Award-winning lyricist Dorothy Fields, whose home on Federal Hill was just a short distance away.

Field’s home was the old Sears homestead, today’s Copland House compound, formerly the Melrose School.

Live Celtic Music

Tompkins Corners Cultural Center will kick off its 11th season Saturday, March 7 with Cécilia, a Québec-based trio celebrated for its electrifying traditional music and joyful virtuosity. Fresh from a sold-out performance for 700 in Glasgow, Cécilia brings energy, warmth, and world-class musicianship to Putnam County.

Cécilia features three musicians whose chemistry resonates wherever they perform. Timi Turmel is master accordionist, pianist, and musical director; Erin Leahy is a powerhouse pianist, composer, and arranger; and Tom Fitzgerald is a highly respected and sought-after fiddle player.

Blending traditional, Celtic, and Québécois music with influences from contemporary, classical, jazz, and swing, Cécilia creates vibrant rhythms and melodies that feel both modern and rooted in heritage. The band’s debut album “Accent” showcases its distinctive sound and musical depth.

TCCC’s signature home-baked goods and beverages will be available at the show.

Tickets are $30 and may be purchased at Eventbrite.com or at the door.

Business Spotlight

Dain’s Lumber Builds Northwards

Well before a train line ever ran along the east bank of the Hudson, Dain’s Lumber was there.

Founded by Nathaniel Dain in 1848, the family-owned business, N. Dain’s & Sons, has endured and grown over the past 178 years. Today, top-grade lumber and building materials line the Peekskill shoreline for a quarter-mile, attracting contractors and homeowners from all over Westchester and Putnam counties – and beyond.

To better serve this large customer base, Dain’s has recently expanded into Philipstown, constructing a large warehouse on Route 9 to hold their extensive inventory.

The Dain’s Lumber crew.

“We may have a retail operation there at some point in the future,” said company president James Dain. “For now, it’s much-needed storage. We do many daily deliveries throughout Putnam County and into Dutchess, so that Philipstown location is a huge help to us.”

James is the sixth generation of family members to run the company. He joined the firm right out of college and took over from his father, Jeff Dain, in 2022. “I worked here in the summers during high school and somehow I just knew this is what I would do,” he said.

James has been particularly fortunate in Vice President Megan Lyons Dain, who is also his wife. Both grew up in Philipstown; Megan began working at the lumberyard while the couple was dating and has taken on many responsibilities at the store, including social media.

“My big project was taking on this hardware section, which has over 200 types of objects – from nails and screws to door hardware to attic louvers,” she said. “It definitely needed weeding and updating. I’m an organized person so it was a great match.”

The COVID epidemic in 2020 put Dain’s on a rapid growth trajectory. “The calls came in so fast and furious that the phone lines froze,” said Megan. “People wanted home offices and more outdoor living spaces. We needed to add staff and carry more inventory.”

“Our staff are so important to our success,” added James. “People come to us for knowledgeable advice and personal service. Our firm’s culture is to go out of our way to help our customers. Integrity and honesty are our core values”

The couple’s next project is expanding the outdoor display area for deck, railing, and porch offerings. “This is our unique niche,” said James. “For 26 years, we’ve been hosting an annual decking show and sale at the end of April; vendors come from all over the metropolitan area to display their products.”

This year, Dain’s will feature an expanded display with two porches that buyers can stand on to evaluate choices of doors, windows, flooring, railings, and trim. A virtual deck guide can be viewed at dainsdeckshow.com.

James and Megan are well aware of the cyclical nature of the building industry.

“My dad says you get seven good years and seven bad years,” said James. “What I want to do is keep the business sound for the next generation. We’re not going to be selling it. We’ve got to make it work so that future Dains can carry it on.”

Dain’s Lumber is located at 2 North Water St., Peekskill, and can be reached at 914-737-2000. Hours are Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., and closed on Sundays.

Brush Fire in Mahopac Falls

Mahopac Falls Volunteer Fire Department was dispatched at about 3:50 p.m. Feb 11 to a brush fire in the area of Austin Road. Due to the location and need for additional water supply, mutual aid was requested. Mahopac and Somers fire departments responded to assist, including tanker support. Firefighters worked quickly to contain the fire and prevent extension to nearby properties. Photo provided by MFVFD.

Choose Your Own Estate Planning Adventure

Achievement-minded parents of the 21st century wish their children read more. A mere glimpse of their teenager engrossed in a paperback would probably leave a permanent grin on Mom and Dad. The fact that one smartphone has access to all of the world’s media and can feed every imaginative impulse is a force that can overshadow the simple act of picking up a book.

Things used to be different. In those ancient, pre-internet, pre-scrolling days, we had to physically source our own reading entertainment. For me, the path to serious reading did not start at the top. Sports books, Mad magazines, Alfred Hitchcock’s Mystery Magazine, and “Choose Your Own Adventure” stories were the on-ramps to a lifelong interest in reading.

The “Choose Your Own Adventure” books were my favorite. Each allowed you to chart a different course within the story, with several different outcomes – all mostly bad, save for one. Turn to page 43 and you escape the Redcoats. Turn to page 45 and the British capture you in the woods and your story ends on a prison ship. The perceived easier road or more monetarily rewarding path tended to lead to disaster, while the more laborious or boring set-up brought better results.

Estate planning works the same way – every decision has a consequence.

An estate plan can go in several directions. The variables are: your priorities, your people, your assets, your ability to delegate to others, your ability to relinquish control, and your timelines. Choosing to create a stable platform allows you to work out your variables more efficiently.

Young couples and young families usually start out with a will or revocable trust with a pour over will that provides basic structure should an unexpected tragedy occur. An executor or trustee collects, manages, and distributes assets as directed in the documents. Guardianship and minor trust provisions protect minor children in these type of extreme circumstances.

Adding advance directives such as a power of attorney or health care proxy provides greater coverage should an emergency or illness limit capacity. Bills can be paid and medical care can be overseen. Wills and revocable trusts along with the advance directives can be either amended, updated, or replaced easily to reflect family changes.

Should you choose not to create these documents and a life-altering event happens, the consequences will be serious. Costly and drawn-out court proceedings will be necessary to bring order and the variables you would have set under your control will now be in the hands of a judge or a New York statute.

As a family matures, the choices for spouses veer between selecting an irrevocable trust or revocable trust. In these cases, you examine the important people in your life and decide if you trust them enough to put them in positions of authority over your assets. If you lack faith in your people and continue to maintain control, that choice will limit asset protection with regards to Medicaid and long-term care.

Then again, choosing the wrong person to be a trustee can adversely affect your assets too, especially if their financial literacy is below average.

Childhood books can be closed and put back on the shelf. “Choose Your Own Adventure” stories had the happy ending buried inside just waiting to be discovered. The effects of a wrong-footed estate plan or lack of a plan can linger for decades and may not be so easy to correct.

Haldane Students Join ‘ICE Out’ Movement

About 200 Haldane high school and middle school students participated in a walk-out Feb. 6 in Cold Spring to protest the actions of U.S. Immigrations & Customs Enforcement across the county. There were no barriers established for the students who chose to participate in the student-led initiative, but their leaving the school was considered an unexcused absence. Photos by Doris Kolarek.

Earth Science Brought to Life in Mahopac

Mahopac High School earth and space science students with science teacher Robert D'Alessandro – a NYS Master Teacher – and the new interactive sandbox.

Mahopac High School earth and space science students are getting a new way to explore the natural world thanks to an interactive sandbox recently introduced by science and New York State Master Teacher Robert D'Alessandro. The hands-on tool allows students to shape sand to create mountains, rivers, valleys, and volcanoes while projected images respond in real time. As students move the sand, landscapes change instantly – helping them visualize concepts such as erosion, weathering, water flow, and land formation in an engaging and tangible way. “We are very fortunate to have this exciting technology here at Mahopac High School,” said D'Alessandro. “It fits perfectly with New York State’s new earth and space science curriculum and allows students to learn about processes like erosion and groundwater flow by using their own hands.” Several students played a key role in bringing the sandbox to life. Juniors Justin Bayne, Bobby Egan, and Sullivan Hunter, along with sophomore Jack Egan spent multiple afternoons after school helping assemble the table and learning how it works. They also demonstrated the technology, showing how small changes in the sand can create dramatic changes in the projected landscape. The interactive nature of the sandbox encourages curiosity and collaboration, allowing students to experiment, ask questions, and immediately see the results of their ideas. By combining creativity with scientific exploration, the tool provides an exciting, memorable way for students to deepen their understanding of earth science concepts.

View Student Artwork at Garrison Art Center

The creative artwork of students in kindergarten through 12th grade in the Hudson Valley region will be on display March 14 to 29 at Garrison Art Center as part of “Rooted: Art in the Natural World,” a school invitation theme exhibition. Additionally, the 2026 high school mentor program exhibition features the work of students from regional schools. An opening reception is scheduled Saturday, March 14 from 1 to 3 p.m., at 23 Garrison Landing. Established in 1994, the school invitational is a cornerstone outreach initiative of GAC. This year’s theme invites students from 19 local elementary, middle, and high schools to explore the connection between art and nature – and to reflect on their relationship with the natural world. Students are encouraged to incorporate natural elements into their work, create materials from found or organic sources (such as walnut ink or onion-skin dye), or design art meant to interact with outdoor environments. The exhibition celebrates creativity grounded in curiosity, stewardship, and a shared connection to the world around us. Since 1988, the high school mentor program has offered dedicated high school students a unique opportunity to collaborate with professional artists, fostering growth in their chosen medium. By pairing students with mentors, the program helps them refine their skills, explore creative boundaries, and gain invaluable insights from professional experience. This year, 13 students are working with mentors across disciplines such as pottery, printing, mixed media, digital photography, and painting. The program culminates in a group exhibition, celebrating the students' artistic achievements. For more information, call 845-424-3960 or visit www.garrisonartcenter.org.

The state has made available $121 million to update public transportation services.

Funding Available to Support Public Transit Services

A total of $121 million in state funding is available to help counties, local municipalities, and regional authorities upgrade, enhance, and modernize their public transportation services through the Transit Ready NY program.

Non-Metropolitan Transportation Authority transit providers are encouraged to apply for funding to support transformative capital projects that modernize transit facilities and infrastructure, enhance regional service coordination, improve access to services, and deploy new technology.

Applications will be accepted through May 21.

Award selection will prioritize projects that meet statewide strategic objectives of increasing operational efficiency, supporting the regionalization of rural transit, and expanding transit service levels. Projects that reduce fleet emissions will also be prioritized.

All projects must have a useful service life of 10 years or more.

Eligible project activities under the program include construction of public transit facilities like intercity bus stations, transit centers, and mobility hubs; implementation of transit priority infrastructure on roadways; deployment of new technology for enhanced passenger experience and/or improved transit operations; improvement of pedestrian roadways for access to transit; implementation of stops, shelters, and street amenities; and improvement, rehabilitation, and expansion of bus garages and facilities.

Administered by the New York State Department of Transportation, Transit Ready NY funding is open to counties and local municipalities designated as Pro-Housing Communities, as per state requirements.

“I’ve always believed that supporting public transit is foundational to reducing barriers and expanding opportunities for New Yorkers, connecting them to the places they want and need to go,” said NYS Department of Transportation Commissioner Marie Therese Dominguez. “New York continues to make smart investments in public transit that do just that, benefiting communities statewide.”

For more information, visit www.dot.ny.gov.

Allison Pataki to Debut New Novel at Desmond-Fish Library

Local author Allison Pataki will discuss her new book “It Girl” in Garrison.

Allison Pataki will launch her new book “It Girl” at her hometown library in Garrison on March 10 at 6 p.m. The Desmond-Fish Public Library will present Pataki in conversation with fellow novelist Lauren Willig.

“It Girl” tells a Gilded Age tale of an artist whose dramatic journey from poverty to the height of glamour and fame still echoes today.

Pataki – the New York Times bestselling author of “The Magnificent Lives of Marjorie Post” – has created an early 20th century heroine whose artistry, ambition, and heartbreak are forces that speak powerfully to readers today.

From the most humble of beginnings, Evelyn Talbot becomes the first self-made American female celebrity – a “Gibson Girl,” the most sought-after face of her time. Two powerful and power-hungry men are drawn to her: Stanley Pierce, world-famous architect, and Hal Thorne, a shockingly wealthy railroad heir and high society playboy. Each man promises comfort, glamour, security, and even love.

But fame and fortune are cruel teachers, and their rivalry brings about “the crime of the century.”

Through Pataki’s writing, the readers see Evelyn find the power to change not only the world around her, but her own destiny.

Pataki will be in conversation with Willig, author of the “Pink Carnation” series and the new World War I novel “Band of Sisters.”

Signed copies of “It Girl” will be available for purchase at the event through Split Rock Books and can be preordered at splitrock-books.com.

Pataki is the multiple New York Times bestselling author of 11 books of historical fiction, memoir, and children’s titles, including the critically acclaimed “Finding Margaret Fuller.” Her novels have been translated into more than 24 languages around the world and have been selected by the TODAY Show, Good Morning America, PBS Books, Entertainment Weekly, CBS News, People Magazine, Town & Country, and other outlets as favorite and featured titles.

Help Care for Historical Markers

Volunteers of all ages across the U.S. are invited to sign up for National Historic Marker Weekend 2026, a free community service celebration taking place Friday, April 24 through Sunday, April 26. The event brings people together to learn about and showcase their local history while caring for historical markers.

Established by the William G. Pomeroy Foundation, the weekend helps communities beautify public spaces and prevent marker deterioration so that hometown history can be enjoyed now and by future generations. This year’s theme, “Your Hometown,” encourages volunteers to clean and highlight the markers that recognize their community’s unique heritage, encouraging pride of place and local tourism.

Registration is open at www.wgpfoundation.org/national-historic-marker-day.

Participants can also download a free volunteer kit with everything needed to plan a local marker-cleaning project. The kit includes a planning document, marker cleaning guide, lesson plans, tips for publicizing your service project, and more.

Nationwide, more than 227,000 historical markers share pieces of the past, and even one cleaned marker can make a big difference right where you live. Spending an afternoon caring for a marker helps your hometown’s history stand out again, welcoming neighbors and visitors alike to stop, read, and connect with the past. All are welcome to participate.

Registered volunteers are recognized each year on the Pomeroy Foundation’s online acknowledgments page. Participants may also choose to join a social media photo challenge by sharing “before” and “after” photos from their projects, with select submissions featured on the foundation’s website and social media.

First observed in 2021 as National Historic Marker Day and designated to the National Day Calendar in 2022, the event expanded in 2025 to a weekend-long celebration, allowing even more people and communities nationwide to participate.

Volunteers should comply with safety and parking regulations and seek permission when planning to clean a marker.

Lakeview Elementary School teacher Jennifer Borst with students.

Mahopac Welcomes New ‘Master Teachers’

Mahopac Central School District has two new Master Teachers. Jennifer Borst, a Lakeview Elementary School educational technology and STEAM educator, and Robert D’Alessandro, a Mahopac High School science teacher, have been selected as New York State Master Teachers in the Mid-Hudson Region.

The designation recognizes outstanding educators who demonstrate a strong commitment to teaching excellence, collaboration, and ongoing professional growth.

The NYS Master Teacher Program offers educators opportunities to engage in high-level professional learning, collaborate with peers from across the region, and explore innovative instructional practices.

“On a personal level, it highlights my commitment to continuous growth as an educator and lifelong learner,” said Borst. “Professionally, this program will allow me to collaborate with educators across the region and participate in professional development that aligns with my interests.”

She added that her passion for learning continues to drive her work in the classroom.

“I’m inspired by seeing students’ ‘aha’ moments and their excitement as they engage in lessons,” said Borst. “That enthusiasm motivates me to keep growing and to bring meaningful STEAM experiences to my students.”

“It’s truly an honor and very humbling,” added D’Alessandro. “It feels good to know the work I enjoy doing every day is being recognized, and it motivates me to keep learning and improving as a teacher.”

He said his inspiration comes directly from the students and colleagues he works with each day.

“My students inspire me every day through their curiosity, questions, and growth,” said D’Alessandro. “I’m also inspired by my colleagues at Mahopac, who are an incredibly talented group of educators and make coming to work every day a pleasure.”

Superintendent of Schools Frank Miele congratulated both educators on their achievement.

“Jenn and Rob exemplify the passion, dedication, and professionalism that define teaching in Mahopac,” he said. “Their selection as NYS Master Teachers is well deserved and reflects our district’s strong commitment to excellence. I am very proud of them and their achievement.”

Borst and D’Alessandro join a distinguished group of Mahopac educators who have earned the Master Teacher designation.

PAC Issues Call to Member Artists

The Putnam Arts Council is inviting its member artists to participate in the 2026 annual Membership Exhibition, to be held March 14 to 29, in the A. Eric Arctander Gallery at the Belle Levine Art Center, 521 Kennicut Hill Road, Mahopac.

This exhibition is open to PAC member artists age 18 and older, who are invited to submit one original work of fine art that has not previously been exhibited at PAC. There is no submission fee, and artists may join or renew PAC membership at any time prior to submission, including at artwork drop-off.

Accepted works will be exhibited for sale, with PAC retaining a 35 percent commission on all sales. Two-dimensional work may not exceed 36 inches in any direction, including frame, and three-dimensional work must be manageable by one person. All work must be ready to hang, with screw eyes and wire preferred.

Artwork must be hand-delivered to the Belle Levine Art Center on Saturday or Sunday, March 7 or 8, between 2 and 5 p.m. A submission form will be provided at drop-off or may be downloaded in advance from the PAC website.

The exhibition opens with a reception and meet-the-artists event Saturday, March 14 from 2 to 5 p.m., with a snow date of Sunday, March 22. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Friday from 1 to 5 p.m.; Sundays, March 15 and 22 from 2 to 5 p.m.; and by appointment.

The exhibition closes Sunday, March 29 with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m., and an artist talk from 3 to 4 p.m.

A student in Lisa Steiner's class describes some common symbols.

Carmel Students Learn the Importance of Symbolism

Eighth-graders at George Fischer Middle School in Carmel learned about the meaning behind symbols like the swastika, and what actions they can take if they see such imagery in their school.

The lesson in Lisa Steiner's social studies class started with a laughing emoji – a symbol that all the students knew the meaning of without anyone having to explain it to them.

"You get to know the meaning when people start using it," said Jenny. "When a lot of people use a symbol, then you understand it."

Then the class discussed a half-dozen familiar symbols, from the wi-fi signal to the peace sign, to the breast cancer ribbon.

A short video showed how the swastika was an ancient symbol used in in many cultures to represent a good life until Hitler appropriated it and it became known as a symbol of hatred and Aryan supremacy.

The video featured brutal historic footage of Nazi atrocities and the voices of some Holocaust survivors.

"It was a lot," said Mia after watching the video. "There was so much violence then."

Today, when someone uses the swastika symbol, it represents hatred toward an entire group of people, Steiner told the class.

The lesson was timely, as swastikas have been found in schools throughout the region recently, including in Carmel. When students learned about the history and meaning of the symbol and how it represents hate, they agreed that anyone who sees a swastika drawn on a school desk or wall should report it to an adult.

"I'm surprised it still shows up places," said Alexandra. "I thought Nazi activity and all that hate had died down, but now it seems like it's rising again."

Report: School Bullying & Drug-Related Incidents Rise

A report by New York State Comptroller Thomas DiNapoli found bullying and drug-related incidents statewide are on the rise, even exceeding pre-pandemic highs, while the rates for the number of serious violent and disruptive incidents remain low.

The report examined seven years of data from the NYS Education Department's School Safety & Educational Climate report.

"Reliable public data about school safety is critical and informs where we need to address problems and identify solutions," said DiNapoli. "This report builds on my office's previous work examining violent and disruptive incidents in our schools. It's disturbing to see the rise in bullying and drug-related incidents. We need to do everything we can to make sure students and teachers feel safe and this data shows there is more to do inside and outside our schools to meet these goals."

In 2019, DiNapoli published a report analyzing the first year of data from the SSEC report, which was implemented in school year 2017-18 to combine Violent & Disruptive Incident Report data with Dignity for All Students Act data.

Bullying & Cyberbullying

Bullying is the most frequently reported incident category. In 2023-24, excluding cyberbullying, bullying made up 61.8 percent of all incidents reported, and was documented at a rate of 12.4 incidents per 1,000 pupils.

When looking at bullying and cyberbullying in 2023-24, 34.9 percent of all public schools (including charter schools) reported zero bullying or cyberbullying incidents. Nearly one in five public secondary schools (17.8 percent) and nearly half of all public elementary schools (47.7 percent) reported zero bullying or cyberbullying incidents.

In the SSEC data, cyberbullying incident rates are very low. Many cyberbullying incidents may go unreported because they are difficult to detect and anonymous. In 2023-24, an overall rate of 1.8 incidents per 1,000 pupils was reported. Among schools that reported cyberbullying incidents, those located upstate had the highest rates of cyberbullying prior to the pandemic, while New York City had the lowest.

Drugs & Alcohol

Drug and alcohol incident rates in secondary schools dropped during 2019-20 and 2020-21, likely due to the shift to remote learning during this period. When students returned to in-person learning in 2021-22, reported drug-related incidents rose above pre-pandemic levels. Incidents for secondary school students rose from 4.2 in 2017-18 to 6.5 per 1,000 students in 2023-24.

Drug-related incidents have more variation by region, with higher rates upstate than in NYC or downstate districts. In 2023-24, incidents were more than twice as high upstate (9.8 per 1,000 students) as they were in NYC (4.2 per 1,000 students). In downstate districts, excluding NYC, the rate was 6.2 per 1,000 students.

From 2017-18 to SY 2023-24, alcohol incident rates in secondary schools hovered at or below one per 1,000 students in all regions.

Serious Violent & Disruptive Incidents

Prior to the pandemic, some of the most serious violent and disruptive incident categories (assault, sexual offense, and weapons possession) experienced gradually declining rates from 2017-18 to 2019-20, although rates for NYC schools were notably higher than for schools outside the city. After the return to in-person learning in 2021-22, the incident rates remained much lower than in the years before the pandemic.

This coincides with definition changes SED implemented for 2021-22. The new definitions for these serious incidents stipulate that the offender must be 10 years of age or older, the incident must meet the criteria for a felony as determined by school officials, and the incident must have been referred to law enforcement.

Cases of assault declined from 4.9 incidents per 1,000 students in 2017-18 to 0.5 incidents in 2023-24. Similarly, sexual offense cases fell from 1.6 incidents to 0.1 per 1,000 students, and weapons possession cases dropped from 3.1 to 0.9 incidents per 1,000 students. Because the revised definitions include age as a criteria for reportability, DiNapoli's analysis of these categories includes only secondary schools (middle, junior, junior/senior high, and senior high schools).

Analysis of 2023-24 SSEC data shows that 41 percent of public elementary schools and 5.9 percent of public secondary schools reported no incidents of any type.

DiNapoli's report said stakeholders should keep in mind that a school reporting zero incidents through the SSEC report may still have records of individual disruptive and violent incidents that are stored locally. For example, incidents that resulted in disciplinary action would be retained, even if the incident did not meet the threshold for SSEC reporting.

In the event that a deficiency balance remains from the sale proceeds, a judgment may be entered against you.

NOTICE OF NATURE OF ACTION AND RELIEF SOUGHT

THE OBJECT of the above caption action is to foreclose a Mortgage to secure the sum of $438,250.00 and interest, recorded on July 13, 2005, in Liber 4598 at Page 0234, of the Public Records of PUTNAM County, New York., covering premises known as 526 LAKE SHORE ROAD, PUTNAM VALLEY, NY 10579.

The relief sought in the within action is a final judgment directing the sale of the premises described above to satisfy the debt secured by the Mortgage described above.

PUTNAM County is designated as the place of trial because the real property affected by this action is located in said county.

NOTICE YOU ARE IN DANGER OF LOSING YOUR HOME

If you do not respond to this summons and complaint by serving a copy of the answer on the attorney for the mortgage company who filed this foreclosure proceeding against you and filing the answer with the court, a default judgment may be entered and you can lose your home.

Speak to an attorney or go to the court where your case is pending for further information on how to answer the summons and protect your property.

Sending a payment to the mortgage company will not stop the foreclosure action.

YOU MUST RESPOND BY SERVING A COPY OF THE ANSWER ON THE ATTORNEY FOR THE PLAINTIFF (MORTGAGE COMPANY) AND FILING THE ANSWER WITH THE COURT.

A Cold Weather Warning on Radon & Lung Cancer

A simple home radon test could protect your family’s health.

The Environmental Protection Agency has developed a radon zone map that helps identify areas at higher risk. Putnam falls into a red zone, with the highest potential for radon exposure – where indoor rates may be greater than 4 picocuries per liter.

With cold weather comes an environmental health hazard that many people are not very familiar with.

Radon is a colorless, odorless gas that, according to the American Lung Association, is the second-leading cause of lung cancer in the U.S. after smoking. For people who do not smoke, radon is the number-one cause of lung cancer.

In Putnam County as well as New York State, lung and bronchus cancers are the most common cause of cancer death, and second only to prostate and breast cancer in terms of incidence.

Radon is nearly everywhere. It occurs naturally in the environment and is present to varying degrees in rocks, water, and soil from the radioactive decay of uranium or thorium in that soil. The risk of exposure to radon rises in winter because people spend more time indoors. Windows are shut and homes are sealed up to keep the cold out, which can cause radon to build up inside.

The Environmental Protection Agency has developed a radon zone map that helps local organizations and government agencies like the Putnam County Department of Health to identify areas at higher risk. Putnam falls into a red zone, with the highest potential for radon exposure – where indoor rates may be greater than 4 picocuries per liter.

“Having this information is very helpful,” said Public Health Director Rian Rodriguez. “We can educate residents about the possible danger and most importantly how to reduce the risks for themselves and their families. Just because Putnam is in a high-risk zone does not automatically mean a home here will have high levels.

The only way to know is to perform an in-home test for radon.”

Home test kits are available for $12.25 at www.health.ny.gov/environmental/radon. They are also available for purchase at most home repair and improvement stores for between $10 and $20, and online from the American Lung Association.

If results show a level above 4 pCi/L, the EPA recommends taking corrective action to lower the level. Things can be done to fix the issue, and costs vary depending on how involved the necessary work is.

Homes today can be constructed to be more radon resistant, but all homes – new and old – should have an initial test. If radon is identified as an issue in the home and a radon reduction system is in place, the NYS Department of Health recommends testing every two years to make sure the system is working properly.

Each home is different: one may have higher radon levels, while just next door the levels are within safe limits. Only a home test, usually left for a few days in a basement area, can determine if radon has entered inside.

With Crisis Center Vetoed, County Looks To Spend Fed. Funds

ARPA funding,” said Carlin. “We do not want to return any funds to the federal government. We want to use it to the benefit of the taxpayers of Putnam County.”

It is possible that repurposing ARPA funds may free up other county resources and allow the county to move its own money around to then be spent on public health.

Legislator Nancy Montgomery, D-Philipstown, chairwoman of the Health Committee, suggested that perhaps there is time to find another site for a much-needed crisis center.

“We identified a need for public health, for mental health, when ARPA funds were being allocated, and we led the public to believe that we were going to spend $2.5 million on public health and now we’re being told that we’re going to spend it on infrastructure when we have a $74 million fund balance that we could use,” she said. “I know of sites that are ready to go right now in my district.”

Carlin explained that, due to federal guidelines surrounding the ARPA funding, it has to be used on something that is already in the works – not something new – and the county doesn’t have any other public health initiatives in the pipeline.

“We’re limited on where we can spend it,” he said.

Montgomery disagreed, saying there are sites that wouldn’t have to go through the planning board process to house a crisis center.

“It’s still on the table, as far as I’m concerned – and I’ve got a great space in Philipstown,” she said. “I’m sure that they’d be happy to use the $2.5 million to help people in need, which is what they do, but they weren’t even considered... I would love to see the language that says it has to be used for an open ARPA project. I can’t imagine them saying ‘don’t use it on public health, don’t use it on mental health,’ with the crisis we’re seeing. Maybe there’s an appeal.”

Carlin said it’s doubtful, but he will look into it.

Legislator Dan Birmingham, R-Southeast, said it’s important that the Legislature is part of the conversation going forward – not just brought in to make a final vote.

“I wouldn’t want to see the ARPA funds be spent on something we’ve already set aside money for, and now we’re just going to use it so to substitute,” he said. “Yes, I get that we don’t want to give money back to the federal government... (but) for me, step one is still focusing it on public health.”

Legislator Erin Crowley, R-Mahopac, said the county may need to get creative with how it shuffles its budget lines around.

“We all just don’t want the money to go unused, so we have to either find a project to use the ARPA money for, and then if we all want to continue to see it used toward another mental health facility or stabilization center, backfill it,” she said.

Carlin agreed.

“Nobody is saying that mental health services aren’t important – they’re vital,” he said. “What I’m saying is, it likely won’t be with ARPA funding. It’s too restrictive, we’re too far down the road.”

Philipstown Folks Seek ‘Equal Protection’ Law

the proposed resolution.

“This new version does not create a sanctuary city,” she said. “It protects all the residents of Philipstown by stating that no personal information of any description – not just immigration status – can be released to an ICE agent without a judicial warrant. Philipstown has always led in so many ways; we can lead in this.”

Councilman Nat Prentice supported Farrell’s initiative, and Councilman Ned Rauch suggested forming a working group to refine the policy.

With the floor open for public comment, Alexandra Cain, a member of Joining Forces, was the lead advocate for the resolution and maintained that it is consistent with New York State laws in stating the importance of judicial warrants for the sharing of information. She emphasized that town employees should be prepared to respond to an ICE visit both for their own protection and for the protection of Philipstown residents.

Cain noted that 180 Philipstown residents so far have signed a letter requesting the resolution.

Attorney Dan Nobel urged the board to consider that “we are in unprecedented times in which we have witnessed unimaginable crimes on the part of ICE and we should be concerned about doing what is right.”

Attorney Susan Anspach assured the Town Board that other town resolutions will be shared with Philipstown that support equal protection and legal non-cooperation with ICE.

Liz Corio read a statement from the Philipstown Democrats in strong support of the proposed 2026 equal rights resolution and policy.

Lucas Gonze thanked the board for its service and asked members to consider “the larger purpose of what we are doing here.”

Final speaker Alex Dubroff referenced the American Revolution, which was fought “on this very soil 250 years ago against the kind of tyranny we are seeing now.”

Von Tassel agreed to the formation of an ad hoc committee to draft a resolution and policy consistent with state and federal law.

Putnam Schools Join the Winter Olympics Hype!

they marched.

Students then rotated through a series of winter-themed events, including classroom “skiing,” “ice hockey,” “ice fishing,” and tabletop hockey, along with “speed skating” in the hallway. Each activity was designed to capture the spirit of the games while encouraging teamwork and sportsmanship.

“The students loved all the activities and it was a great experience for them,” said kindergarten teacher Megan Shea. “They were able to cheer on their teammates and practice valuable social skills while having fun and learning about current events in the world.”

The celebration concluded with a medal ceremony where all four teams were awarded gold medals, followed by hot cocoa, cookies, and donuts to cap off the festivities.

The kindergarten event followed a weeklong Olympic Spirit Week at Fulmar Road, featuring themed days such as Italian Flag Day, Olympic Medal Day, Olympic Ring Day, Sports Fan Gear Day, and Team USA Day. Parent volunteers added to the excitement by treating students to snow cones during lunch in honor of Team USA.

Over at JFK Elementary School in Brewster, students kicked off the Olympics and also got hyped for the Super Bowl with special activities in physical education class.

Students learned about curling by sliding bean bags into rings for points, tried out the luge by scooting across the gym floor in teams, raced through a giant slalom course, and even tried “ski jumping” onto mats.

For some Super Bowl fun, students tested their throwing skills by aiming footballs at a foam dice balanced on a giant cone – each side had a different exercise, and wherever it landed meant that was the challenge.
