Putnam Valley Mourns Siblings Killed in House Fire

By Holly Crocco

Two Putnam Valley High School students were killed in a home fire May 27 in Cortlandt Manor.

The fire began just after 2 a.m. May 27, in a raised ranch on Sherwood Road. First responders found both the front and back entrances completely blocked by flames, preventing firefighters from gaining immediate access.

According to news reports, an adult son who slept downstairs was able to get his mother out of the house, and the two notified firefighters that 17-year-old Alina Toone and 15-year-old Jeremiah Toone were still inside. The teens were reportedly pulled from a second-story window, both pulseless and not breathing.

Firefighters and EMS provided CPR at the scene, before the two were transported to area hospitals. Alina was pronounced dead a few hours before her brother.

A pet dog was also lost to the fire.

According to fire officials, a preliminary investigation suggests that the fire sparked when a power strip connected to an extension cord in the dining room failed. The fire activated smoke detectors, which woke up the mother and adult son.

Dad Gregory Toone, a corrections officer for Westchester County, was at work when the fire occurred.

Both teenagers were students of the Putnam Valley Central School District, which activated the regional crisis response team last week and is working in partnership with the Putnam County Department of Social Services & Mental Health to provide clinical

Reassessments ... Not Fun, But Necessary

By Holly Crocco

With reassessment notices having recently been mailed out to Kent residents, Town Assessor Seth Plawsky was asked to speak at the May 19 Kent Town Board meeting to address concerns and answer questions.

"Most people seem to think if your assessment is going up, it means your taxes are going up, and that's not the truth," he said.

Plawsky explained that last year the town underwent a reappraisal because there were properties that were grossly over- or under-assessed. This year, the new assessments were applied by neighborhood.

For example, property owners in Lake Carmel all saw their assessments raise by about 8 percent. "That's what we saw in the market, that's what we did," said Plawsky.

However, he explained that those residents aren't going to see an assessment-driven increase in their taxes.

To calculate the tax rate, his office divides the total tax levy (the amount that needs to be collected via taxes), which this year is $10 million, by the total taxable assessed value townwide, which is $2.5 billion, to get a tax rate of $4 per $1,000 of assessed value.

For a house valued at the average of $400,000, that's $1,600 in taxes.

"Now this year we come along and we do a trending reassessment," said Plawsky. He said that since everyone's home value has gone up, the number he's dividing the levy by increases, which lowers the tax rate.

"The lower tax rate ... times the new increased assessment, your taxes don't change," he explained. "They are the same amount. There's a belief that the more the we raise assessments, the more the town gets to collect, (but) the budget is totally independent of assessments... As long as you're moving with the average - what everybody else is doing - it's net neutral on your taxes."

Councilman Christopher Ruthven reiterated that this year's reassessment is different than last year's revaluation.

"This is a market raise across the board, so it doesn't mean the town is collecting any more money," he said. "We're still at an amount we're looking to collect, it's just that the values of you properties are now assessed for more than they were before."

Plawsky said assessments raised on average last year 68 percent, which brought the tax rate down from $42 per $1,000 of value, to $27 per $1,000 of value. However, there is more value on the home that the owner has to pay on.

"So yes, you have a higher assessment, but you have a lower tax rate," he said. "As one goes up, the other's going to go down."

The assessor said that every year, homeowners will get a new assessment. And even if the market crashed and assessments were reduced, the tax rate would still stay the same.

"The vast majority of the town is in the Carmel school district," said Plawsky. "We share that school district with five other towns. Every one of those five towns does annual reassessments. Raising and lowering, as long as everybody is going at the same rate, it's not going to impact taxes."

Patriotism in Putnam Valley

Memorial Day was commemorated May 25 in Putnam Valley with a ceremony at the fire department, followed by a wreath-laying in Lake Peekskill. Photos by Chloe Wareham-Gordon.

WWII Marine Corps veteran Nils Mockler, 100, was a special guest speaker. At age 17, Nils enlisted in the Marines – after being turned away the year before prior being too young. He was selected as a combat intelligence scout with the 4th Marine Division's Tank Battalion and, at 18, landed on the black volcanic sand of Iwo Jima on the second day of one of the bloodiest battles of WWII. At the ceremony, he received a proclamation from Town Supervisor Alison Jolicoeur.

Letters to the Editor

More Coverage of Fjord Trail Needed

The following letter is in response to coverage in a different newspaper, not the Putnam County Press/Times.

Dear Editor:

I'd like to address the recent push by proponents of the Fjord Trail for a referendum, as to whether or not legal action against the NYS Office of Parks, Recreation & Historic Preservation should be pursued, and the lack of information concerning increased taxpayer responsibility should the trail be built.

For the record, there has been no in-depth coverage on this issue. Given what was quoted in (another newspaper) "... State Parks said that HHFT 'avoids, minimizes, or mitigates potential adverse environmental impacts to the maximum extent practicable' and 'will achieve a balance between the protection of the environment and the need to accommodate social and economic considerations,'" we can't expect the state to assess our vulnerabilities. It's not under Hudson Highlands Fjord Trail's purview. It's left up to our local newspaper.

Up until now, we've only seen a scare tactic about the use of taxpayers' money as amplified by HHFT and the press. But what happens to taxes if the trail is built as proposed?

As per above, there is no mitigation for Philipstown or Cold Spring. Indeed, the State of New York has now usurped town and village authority by authorizing the Fjord Trail project to go through (arguably the most impactful since the railway) without any need for approval from the village or town planning, zoning, or municipal boards.

We, the residents, regularly have to go before the appropriate boards on the most minimal of issues, yet a multi-hundred-million-dollar project in the river can stomp its way across our landscape, using our roads and bridges (think: construction, pile driving equipment, cranes, and later maintenance vehicles, not to mention food trucks) without any municipal control.

The state's findings statement as well as HHFT's trivial answers to our very real concerns were insulting, if you were paying attention.

As per the article, when the village and town say that the findings statement "did not adequately address potential visitor impact on parking, traffic, emergency services, and local quality of life," this is a severe understatement.

Let's break it down.

Yes, there are costs to a legal suit. But what are the costs to taxpayers if the trail goes in? Nobody knows. It's not under HHFT's purview. The state has already weighed in with no money but some vague idea of balancing as per above.

So, what are the costs of six years of construction vehicles carrying fill and cranes and concrete over Cold Spring and Philipstown's roads and bridges? Given the general environmental impact study conducted by HHFT and condoned by the state, it would be up to local taxpayers to take on any meaningful study of financial impacts.

And what would such a study mean when the town and village have no authority to rein the project in? How much should be budgeted for repairs coming from the extra wear and tear? Villagers already pay personally for breaks in their water lines reaching out to the middle of their roads. What will large concrete trucks mean for that?

In my comment to the draft GEIS, I questioned what maintenance vehicles would be required. HHFT's response avoided mentioning any vehicles at all. It did cite regular extraction of sewage from the eight newly built toilets at Docksider, but with no indication of how or where this sludge would go.

Again, it was insulting.

What about water usage? We've had at least two recent years of drought. What happens when we, residents, are restricted use under law, while the visitors (over 250,000 per year, with most coming from the south during the summer) are merely asked to conserve, with no binding law?

Water prices will go up. Who pays? Certainly not the Fjord Trail. Certainly not the state.

None of this has been calculated within the "general" study that the state deemed necessary and then passed. Village and town boards have now been circumvented by authority of the state so that no further recourse can take place. This lawsuit is all that we have to further identify the unknowns.

Now, members of the Putnam Legislature have weighed in with a need for more information. Maybe if there was better coverage of this issue, the county – and Philipstown residents – would be better informed earlier on and some of the divisiveness of this project could have been avoided.

Instead, we have one side of the table searching/FOILING for facts, and the other side inundated with pretty pictures and the lull of a new attraction.

Where is the real reporting on such an important issue to our town?

Carmel Libertarian

Principle Over Politics

Editor's note: This op-ed has been edited for length.

As the race for county executive heats up, the Libertarian Party finds itself at a crossroads, torn between the pragmatic desire for influence and the rigid adherence to its core principles. The recent endorsement of Brett Yarris by the local party board, contrasted with the denial of incumbent Kevin Byrne, raises a fundamental question: Are we endorsing a candidate because they align with our philosophy, or are we simply picking a lane in a crowded field?

To understand the gravity of this situation, we must look at the stated principles of the Libertarian Party: individual liberty, limited government, non-aggression, and fiscal responsibility. These are not merely buzzwords; they are the bedrock of our movement.

Byrne has governed more consistently with libertarian principles than anyone in this discussion, particularly on issues of individual liberty, taxation, and government restraint. During his first three years as county executive, Byrne delivered more than $10 million in cumulative tax relief. He enacted the largest property tax cut in Putnam history, reducing the levy by $2.5 million over three years... He funded capital projects without new borrowing and reduced long-term county debt by more than half.

On individual liberty, Byrne's record is equally compelling. He is a strong supporter of the Second Amendment, consistently endorsed by the NRA, the New York State Rifle & Pistol Association, and other pro-Second Amendment organizations – positions that place him squarely in alignment with the Libertarian Party's longstanding defense of the right to self-defense and armed individual sovereignty.

During the COVID era, while serving in the State Assembly, Byrne opposed heavy-handed government mandates and was outspoken against restrictions imposed on businesses, houses of worship, and individuals. He voted against efforts that would have weakened religious exemptions tied to vaccine mandates and defended the rights of individuals to make their own medical decisions without government coercion.

I was present for the interview with Byrne in April, where he spoke about Thomas Jefferson and shared principles of limited government and individual liberty. Whatever one thinks of his party registration, the man articulated a governing philosophy rooted in the same enlightenment ideals that animate Libertarian thought.

Afterward, several individuals expressed support and encouraged Byrne to pursue a Libertarian line – not because of a backroom deal, but because his words and record resonated.

Now consider the alternative. Yarris is a registered Democrat who has run on Democrat ballot lines and has also aligned with the Working Families Party – a far-left political organization rooted in higher taxes and expanded government. He has never held elected office... Yet he now seeks the county's highest executive office, advocating for increased government spending and expanded county involvement, including a costly community college proposal that would grow the footprint and the budget of county government.

Expanding government bureaucracy and increasing taxpayer spending are fundamentally incompatible with libertarian principles, particularly when proposed by a candidate with no track record of managing public funds, cutting budgets, or delivering the kind of fiscal restraint that Libertarians demand. The Working Families Party, in particular, has consistently championed the kind of redistributive taxation and regulatory expansion that Libertarians have spent decades opposing.

To endorse a candidate with no governmental experience, aligned with such an organization – and then claim the mantle of Libertarian principle – is not just inconsistent; it strains credulity.

Critics have argued that Byrne's attempt to run on an independent Libertarian line without an official endorsement is "despicable" and "underhanded." They claim Byrne is "trading on our name" despite not being a Libertarian.

The Libertarian brand is not a trademark to be hoarded by a committee; it is a set of ideas. And on the ideas that define Libertarianism, Byrne's record speaks far louder than Yarris's rhetoric...

For the Libertarian movement to thrive in Putnam County, we must return to first principles. We must ask ourselves: Does our endorsement advance the cause of liberty? Does it challenge the status quo of big government? Or does it merely lend our credibility to a candidate who will govern as a mainstream Democrat while the most fiscally restrained, liberty-defending executive in recent county history runs without our backing?

The path forward requires honesty. If we believe Byrne's policies align more closely with our values than Yarris's – and the record clearly shows they do – we should say so, regardless of the official endorsement. If we believe the board's decision was a mistake, we must voice that dissent openly...

In the end, the voters of Putnam County deserve more than a Angel Elektra and Shay D'Pines will once again lead the celebrations at Putnam Pride. Photo by Jessy Dunn.

Putnam Pride to Host 7th Annual Celebration

The seventh annual Putnam Pride Celebration is scheduled Saturday, June 13.

This rain-or-shine event will kick off at 1 p.m., at the Historic Courthouse in downtown Carmel, with a rally and march. A photo booth, 40-plus local vendors, face painting, entertainment, food trucks, ice cream, and a kids' tent will round out the day at Veterans Memorial Park.

"I can't believe this is happening in my town," said one Putnam Pride attendee last year. "We needed this."

At 1 p.m., hosts Angel Elektra and Shay D'Pines – in conjunction with Kingston's Unicorn Brass Band – will lead marchers from the Historic Courthouse down Gleneyda Avenue to the rainbow sign at Gilead Presbyterian Church. After returning to the courthouse, attendees will hear from local clergy and speakers before heading to Veterans Memorial Park on Gypsy Trail Road for a celebration.

Guests can also go straight to the park, where there will be vendors and music beginning at 1 p.m. A 2 p.m. flag raising ceremony will officially kick off festivities at the park, where there will be more entertainment and speakers than ever before. Elektra and D'Pines, along with DJ Brittany, will welcome Stephanie "Starr" Bermudez, Sasha Renee, I.Den.t.T, and others to the stage this year.

The always popular 4 p.m. open mic event will provide a chance for attendees to share their talents.

Strong Women

Before we wrap up Women's Health Month, let's take a moment to discuss sarcopenia, or loss of muscle mass. Women naturally begin to lose muscle mass as estrogen declines with perimenopause and menopause. This can lead to increased weakness and other negative impacts on health, including limited mobility and greater injury risk. Regular exercise and strength training, along with the right diet are essential to reduce risk of sarcopenia.

Strength training

Strength training, especially resistance training, helps prevent muscle mass loss. If you aren't active, seek guidance on how to safely begin to incorporate regular movement. Even if you're just starting out, you'll be able to engage in something that helps you begin to gain strength and support muscle growth.

Protein intake

Protein is essential to support strength training and build muscle. Most women need approximately 1-1.2 grams protein/kg body weight (higher for those on a GLP-1 medication). With aging, daily protein requirements increase (up to 1.5g protein/kg). To meet your needs, include protein in all meals and most snacks. Seek a variety of plant and animal-based proteins. Nutrient dense grains and convenient options like unsalted cottage cheese, plain, non-fat Greek yogurt, hard boiled eggs, cheese sticks, nuts and seeds make it easy to have protein throughout the day.

Vitamin D

We typically think of vitamin D as essential for bone health. However, it's also key to maintaining strong muscles. If you're presently vitamin D deficient it can affect your ability to build and maintain muscle mass. Discuss this potential with your doctor if you're concerned before seeking supplementation.

History Column

Jack Alcott, Southeast Historian

Brewster is deserving of many historical markers, like this one on Root Avenue in Southeast.

Where is Brewster's Blue & Gold?

Isn't it curious that Brewster village has so few historical signs?

The Borden's sign here is an obvious and warranted one.

Yes, there are smaller bronze plaques on Old Town Hall, the Avery Building built in 1850, the war monuments on Main Street and at Veterans Park, as well as a plaque and statue at the fire department, among others.

But none are the eye-catching blue-and-gold historical signs.

Yet, the village has potentially multiple historic sites and buildings – starting with Walter Brewster's railroad station dating back to 1848 – that are worthy of the signs.

And what about the iron mines from the 1860s through 1890s that tunnel under the village and supplied ore to help build the Industrial Revolution?

Or the circa-1860s Lobdell House, the Southeast House, Masonic Lodge (1860s), the saintly Nurses Association (1906), the Diverting Reservoir (1893), Electrazone Field (think RFK landing in a helicopter) – the site of the old covered bridge on Carmel Avenue?

Maybe even the Cameo Theater site where the great pioneering filmmaker D.W. Griffith edited raw footage for his movie "America" because the venue had the only necessary technology – a film projector – for miles around in the early 1920s?

Or possibly the house or address on Oak Street where 7th Cavalry soldier William Losee grew up before he went to his tragic death with Custer at the Little Big Horn massacre?

Brewster village was a dynamic little boomtown in the 19th and early 20th centuries, and I'm sure there are many other historic locales that might be worthy of consideration for the historical signs.

Among the attendees at the St. Christopher's Inn field blessing were County Legislator Nancy Montgomery, Victoria Cafarelli of Assemblymember Dana Levenberg's office, Lauren Johnson and Lynée Cabiati from Putnam County government, Katherine Reynolds of CoveCare Center, many Friars and Franciscan Sisters of the Atonement at Graymoor, as well as staff and alumni who have gone through the treatment program at St. Christopher's Inn.

St. Christopher's Inn Celebrates Field Blessing

Community members gathered May 7 on the Franciscan Friars of the Atonement's softball field for a blessing to kick off the upcoming season of sportsmanship, recreation, and fellowship for members of St. Christopher's Inn – a residential substance use disorder treatment center in Garrison.

The field blessing was led by

Fr. Dennis Polanco, SA, president and spiritual advisor at the inn.

The celebration marked the importance of structured activity as part of recovery. For many at St. Christopher's Inn, softball is much more than a weekend pastime to enjoy during the spring, summer, and fall. The game helps build discipline, self-control, accountability, communication, teamwork and interpersonal skills, while fostering confidence, friendship, and true sportsmanship both on and off the field.

Founder Fr. Paul Wattson, SA, loved baseball and there were said to be many games played on the field in the past between students at the Friars Seminary and the Maryknoll fathers and brothers in the 1930s.

Real Estate By Vanessa Alfano

Are Short-Term Rental Regulations Outpacing the Problem?

Short-term rentals have become one of the more closely watched topics in local real estate conversations, including here in Putnam County.

Across the Hudson Valley, towns are increasingly discussing permits, restrictions, occupancy limits, inspections, and enforcement tied to Airbnb-style rentals. In some communities, formal regulations are already in place. In others – including Philipstown – conversations around additional oversight continue to evolve.

The concern itself is understandable. Towns want to preserve neighborhood character, protect housing supply, and prevent the kinds of issues that can emerge when residential properties begin functioning more like rotating hospitality spaces. Parking, noise, septic strain, and absentee ownership are all legitimate considerations.

But an important question is beginning to emerge alongside the regulatory momentum: Are some communities responding to a problem that, locally, may still be relatively limited in scale?

Putnam County is not a market dominated by short-term rentals. Unlike larger vacation-driven regions farther north, the county's housing market is still overwhelmingly shaped by full-time residents, commuters, and second-home owners using properties primarily for personal use.

Short-term rentals certainly exist – particularly around lake communities, rural properties, and scenic areas – but the overall volume remains modest compared to major destination markets.

That distinction matters. And in recent Philipstown discussions surrounding proposed short-term rental regulations, some residents have expressed concern that the response may be becoming overly broad.

At public meetings, several property owners described scenarios in which longstanding, low-impact arrangements would no longer comply under the proposed framework. One resident explained that she had quietly rented rooms within her home for years without issue – something the proposed regulations would no longer allow. Another family described relying on occasional short-term rental income to help offset the cost of maintaining a home in the area including rising property taxes, yet indicated they, too, would likely fall outside the proposed rules.

Those examples highlight the complexity of the issue. Because while towns are understandably trying to prevent abuse or large-scale commercial activity, regulations can sometimes sweep far beyond that intent – affecting residents who are not operating investment portfolios or hospitality businesses, but simply trying to maintain flexibility within properties they personally use and occupy.

There is also the issue of consistency. With each town approaching short-term rentals differently, buyers are increasingly faced with a patchwork of rules that can be difficult to navigate. What is permitted in one town may require extensive approvals in another. For homeowners evaluating flexibility, that uncertainty becomes part of the purchasing decision itself.

And flexibility matters more than many realize. For some second-home owners, occasional short-term rental income helps offset carrying costs and makes ownership feasible in the first place. For others, the ability to rent periodically provides peace of mind, even if they rarely use the option.

None of this means towns should ignore the issue, but it does suggest that balance matters.

A measured approach – one that distinguishes between isolated nuisance situations and the broader housing market – may ultimately serve communities better than regulations that outpace the actual scale of local activity. Because once restrictions become overly broad, they can begin affecting not just investors or operators, but ordinary homeowners navigating an already expensive housing environment.

Putnam County is still, fundamentally, a residential market. And while short-term rentals are clearly part of the conversation, they are not yet defining the landscape. The challenge for local towns may not simply be whether to regulate – but how to do so without losing perspective on the size of the issue itself.

Landscape Architecture of the Hudson Valley

Alex Prizgintas will present his newest local history program Monday, June 11 at 6 p.m., at the Desmond-Fish Library in Garrison.

Highlighting the local and national work of Calvert Vaux, Frederick Law Olmsted, and Andrew Jackson Downing, Prizgintas explores their rise to fame while contrasting their noted national projects with some of their contributions to the Hudson Valley.

Adapted from his 2021 film documentary produced in part with Marist University's Hudson River Valley Institute, both Olmsted and Vaux remained tied to the Hudson Valley even after their fame with the construction of Central Park – particularly through Vaux's architectural works and the business of the Olmsted Bros firm.

The June 11 program will pay particular attention to multiple landmarks that received influences from both minds, including Matthew Vassar's Springside Estate, Newburgh's Downing Park, Middletown's Hillside Cemetery, the Hudson River State Hospital, and more.

Overnight Deliveries Considered on Pugsley Road

By Holly Crocco

A public hearing is scheduled June 8 before the Southeast Planning Board regarding an application by Brewster Industrial LLC to allow overnight truck deliveries for Lincoln Logistics on Pugsley Road.

Dan Richmond of the law firm Zarin & Steinmetz explained during the April 27 planning board meeting that currently, no deliveries are allowed between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. weekends, and 5 p.m. and 6 a.m. weekdays. On Sundays and federal holidays, deliveries may not start until 10 a.m.

“It’s rendering the lease of the large warehouse building on the site infeasible for its intended purpose,” said Richmond, noting that 30 prospects over the last 20 months have been engaged and found that restriction on hours of operation and prohibition on overnight delivery a “decisive dealbreaker.”

He said that any outside truck traffic would comply with the town’s noise limitations at all hours.

Board Chairman Thomas LaPerch thanked the applicant for working with the town to address residents’ concerns.

“I think that what you did up there looks great,” he said. “You did everything you promised, and I know you have a challenge right now finding a tenant based on the hours. But from a town standpoint, we thank you for doing everything you were supposed to do – from a building standpoint.”

Board member Lynne Eckardt said she’s still cautious about allowing overnight truck deliveries.

“This was a very contentious project and the one thing we could offer was the 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. ban,” she said. “My concern here is once – or if – this is passed, then Lesser Evil will want the same, other parts of town will want the same... We can’t put the toothpaste back in the tube.”

Eckardt said that if the ban is lifted and neighbors end up complaining about noise or traffic, “there’s no enforcement for this. It’s done.”

Board member David Rush commented on the allowable 50 to 55 decibels of noise, saying, “If you said to somebody 50 is OK but 55 is not, it’s very hard to convince somebody who’s being annoyed” that the business is operating within reason.

Public Hearing Related to Garden St. Development

A public hearing regarding proposed zoning changes that are presumably related to development of the old Garden Street school property in the Village of Brewster is scheduled June 10 at 7 p.m., at Village Hall.

Proposed Local Law No. 5 of 2026 pertains to updating Chapter 263 of the village zoning code, and is available for viewing at www.brewsterville-nj.gov and at Village Hall, 50 Main St.

The local law seeks to amend the section regarding “mixed-use districts” to say that no building shall exceed five stories or 60 feet, and that residential single-family density shall not exceed one dwelling unit per lot. The density for multifamily or town home dwelling units shall not exceed 40 bedrooms per acre.

The changes would allow the addition of two more floors to the existing Garden Street building, which is proposed to be developed into housing.

support throughout the district to students and staff.

“As a district, we are committed to supporting our school community in every way possible as we process this heartbreaking loss together,” wrote Superintendent of Schools Dr. Jeremy Luft. “Our thoughts are with the family affected by this devastating tragedy, all those who had personal connections to the victims, and the courageous first responders who arrived on scene and provided care.”

The Putnam Valley Children’s Center also offered its condolences “for the loss of two of the most wonderful children that have ever come through our children’s program. This heartbreaking tragedy is beyond comprehension and belief,” the center shared on social media. “Alina and Jeremiah will forever be in our hearts and memories.”

Lake Mohegan Fire District Chief Thomas Eade recognized the extraordinary efforts of the first responders who arrived on the scene.

“Arriving crews were confronted with extremely dangerous conditions and immediately entered the residence in an aggressive effort to locate and rescue the victims,” he said. “Their actions reflected tremendous courage, professionalism, and unwavering dedication to protecting life.”

According to Eade, firefighters and EMS personnel “did everything within their power in their attempt to save those children. Their efforts represent the very highest standards of the fire service and emergency medical response,” he said. “Incidents such as this weigh heavily not only on the family and the community, but also on the first responders who worked tirelessly under extraordinarily difficult conditions.”

The investigation remains ongoing and is being conducted by the Westchester County Cause & Origin Team in conjunction with the New York State Police-Cortlandt Barracks. Investigators continue to focus on the rear dining room area of the residence, specifically examining a melted extension cord and melted power strip as part of the investigation.

A GoFundMe account has been sent up to support the Toone family which, as of press time, raised more than $130,000. It can be found at www.gofundme.com/f/supporting-officer-toone-after-tragic-loss.

Renegades Celebrate 5 Millionth Fan

FISHKILL – 5 million. That’s 5,000,000.

The Hudson Valley Renegades minor league baseball team welcomed their 5 millionth fan last Tuesday but lost to the Bowling Green Hot Rods. Bowling Green is an affiliate of the Tampa Bay Rays, and the Renegades, of course, are an affiliate of the New York Yankees.

The Renegades were known as the Erie Sailors before relocating from Pennsylvania to Fishkill. Previously, the franchise was affiliated with the Rays and the Texas Rangers.

Five million fans over 32 years is pretty good for a franchise that plays in a ballpark that holds less than 6,000 and has only been a rookie league or Single A club. That’s more than 156,000 fans on average per season.

The 155th fan through the gates on Tuesday night was showered with gifts.

“We are so excited to help our 5 millionth fan find their fun at Heritage Financial Park,” said Tom Denlinger, general manager of the Renegades. “This is truly a special milestone for our orga-

Also, Minor League Baseball has announced that Hudson Valley pitcher Rory Fox has been named the South Atlantic League Pitcher of the Week for May 19 to 24. Fox is ranked by MLB Pipeline as the Yankees’ No. 20 prospect.

Fox, 22, made one start against the Brooklyn Cyclones last week and threw his first career complete-game shutout, throwing 7.0 innings and allowing two hits and one walk while striking out eight. It was the first complete game shutout thrown by a Renegades pitcher since Kyle Carr on July 2, 2025, and just the second of 7.0-or-more innings thrown by a Hudson Valley pitcher since 2009.

“We are really proud of Rory and excited for him, as he’s been working through some early season unlucky results to start the year,” said Renegades pitching coach Ryan Mossman. “He’s been working on his craft, improving his arsenal, adding some new pitches, figuring out new execution for where his stuff plays the best, and it really came together in his last outing.”

their values increase more than the 68 percent because for years they were underassessed.

“The language is difficult, but those properties were not paying their fair share,” he said. “That’s all an assessment does, really, is assign your share of the pie... The size of the pie, that’s done through budgeting, and the assessments are just to say, ‘this is what your fair share is.’ Because if you have houses that aren’t paying their fair share, it means everybody else pays a little bit more.”

The choice, on principle, should be clear.

That is why, as a registered member of the Libertarian Party, I am proud to endorse Kevin Byrne for Putnam County executive. And that is why I am actively assisting in the effort to place his name on the ballot under the Libertarian Party line—not as a subversion of our party’s process, but as a fulfillment of its purpose.

Rooting for the Home Team

This is the time to switch hats from ambivalent reporter to ardent supporter. Yes, the dirty little secret among us sportswriters is out: we root.

Sort of.

No, we don't openly cheer during the regular season. But come the Section 1 tournament, all bets are off. If a Putnam County high school team is playing a team from Westchester, Rockland, or Dutchess, it's only natural to root for the locals.

Why is that? Familiarity and attachment.

You can't help but have a working relationship with these coaches and players. You want to see them achieve success. They spend the preseason and the regular season working extremely hard and you just want them to have something to show for it.

Me? I was spoiled. I started my career covering girls' basketball with teams like Haldane, Our Lady of Lourdes, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and John Jay-East Fishkill, not to mention Roy C. Ketcham baseball.

I covered the University of Michigan football and ice hockey teams when they both won a national championship. I covered boxer Tracy Patterson, son of former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, on his way to his own championship.

That's not bragging – that's just me being grateful to be a part of it.

Deep down, we want these coaches and players to experience the ultimate. So we root. We want them to come out of this with their health and an incredible memory.

A letterman's jacket is pretty cool, too.

Put Valley Baseball Makes the Finals

PUTNAM VALLEY – The Putnam Valley High School baseball team continued to roll... Right into the Section 1 Class B finals.

Reece Horan pitched a complete-game three-hitter to lead the Tigers into the finals with a 7-0 victory over Blind Brook. PV is the top seed in the section and was scheduled to face Pawling in the championship in a double elimination scenario.

In-between, Putnam Valley beat Briarcliff in a semifinal game.

Luis Peduto had three hits in the win over Blind Brook for the Tigers. Teammate Evan Peterson doubled, tripled, and scored three times.

High School Sports Roundup

MAHOPAC – The glorious season for the Mahopac High School baseball team is not over yet. The resilient team lost to Yorktown, but beat Horace Greeley to advance to the Section 1 Class AA championship.

'Pac was scheduled to meet No. 1 Rye in a double elimination situation. Mahopac has already lost once in the tournament, but Rye has not been beaten.

Girls Lacrosse

BREWSTER – The Mahopac High School girls' lacrosse team went on the road to beat a familiar foe in the Section 1, Class D tournament.

Granted, it was a short trip, but a victory nonetheless. The Wolf Pac took the quarterfinal matchup, 11-5.

Mahopac was seeded fifth and the Bears were fourth.

Ashley Koch had four goals and Gianna DeVito had two, as did teammates Gianna Cirelli and Bella Gangemi.

Alas, Putnam Valley, Carmel, and Haldane were all eliminated from their respective tournaments.

Mahopac Boys Advance to Lacrosse Semifinals

MAHOPAC – The Mahopac High School boys' lacrosse team advanced into the Section 1, Class B semifinals at the expense of one of its archrivals. The Wolf Pac ran away with a 22-9 victory over Carmel.

Mahopac was seeded fourth; the Rams were fifth.

The game was knotted at two at the end of the first quarter. The Wolf Pac then scored nine straight goals.

Liam Jones scored five goals for the winners. Conor Behun and Bobby Egan tallied four goals each for 'Pac.

David Mahoskey, Braden Ross, and Colin Sullivan all had two goals apiece for Carmel.

Mahopac was scheduled to meet Yorktown in the semifinals and was hoping to atone for a 15-4 loss in the regular season.

Brewster was also scheduled for a semifinal matchup after scoring four consecutive goals at the end of the game for a 14-10 win over Harrison in the quarterfinals. Liam McKenney and Bears teammate Paul Rienzi tallied four times each.
