A Celestial Celebration!

The April 8 total solar eclipse brought people across the country outside during the day to view the rare occurrence, when the moon passes between the sun and earth and leaves us in darkness for a short time during the day. Brewster elementary and intermediate school students viewed the eclipse at school, while middle and high school students were dismissed early with a pair of glasses to use at home or at afterschool activities.

Students across Putnam County enjoyed the event, with special NASA-approved glasses that were handed out. Mahopac High School's Jennifer Degl gathered 150 students on the turf field for the once-in-alifetime opportunity.

Brewster Schools Consider 2.9% Tax Levy Increase

By Holly Crocco

The Brewster School Board is considering a 2024-25 budget that once again stays below the state-mandated property tax cap.

During the March 26 school board meeting, Assistant Superintendent for Finance & Operations Victor Karlsson said the administration is proposing a $119.6 million budget, which represents a 3.35 percent, or about $4 million increase over this year.

Under the proposed budget, the tax levy will increase $2.3 million, or 2.9 percent, which is below the property tax cap of 3.12

Karlsson noted that this is the eighth year the district has budgeted below the tax cap, saving homeowners a collective $7.4 million in taxes it could have collected but didn't.

With a total of $82.6 million generated through taxes, the remainder of the district's revenue Continued on Page 16

Alliance Seeks to Reduce Overdose

Alliance - professionals from across dozes of organizations and sectors – joined together at the Bureau of Emergency Services in Putnam last month to focused on the shared long-term goal to reduce fatal and non-fatal drug overdoses countywide.

A review of data that included information related to 911 overdose-related calls and gathered through law enforcement was presented by an analyst from the High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas program covering Putnam County. Attendees then split into three work groups to address topics such as de-stigmatization, hope for Members of The BRIDGE recovery and youth-specific needs.

"We have to approach this problem from every angle, as accidental overdose continues to be a leading cause of death across our nation," said Putnam County Executive Kevin Byrne. "Collaboration between different agencies and providers is key so that no one is working in their own silo. We're very proud of the group we've assembled, and it is our sincere hope this group can foster some unique local solutions to an ongoing global crisis.

Kent OKs Natural Resources Inventory

The Town of Kent has adopted a comprehensive Natural Resources Inventory, created by the Kent Conservation Advisory Committee and town board, marking a significant step forward in the town's commitment to preserving its natural beauty and resources for future generations.

Initiated in 2019, the NRI project was a collaborative effort guided by the town's comprehensive plan of 2008 and the KCAC, and supported by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation. The project received technical assistance and $49,640 in grant funding from the DEC Hudson River Estuary Program.

Staff from Hudsonia Ltd., a non-profit environmental organization, worked with a volunteer town steering committee for nearly two years to develop the NRI. The result is a GIS-based document that provides valuable insights into the quantity, quality, distribution and condition of Kent's natural resources, including soils, water resources, habitats and wildlife.

In addition, local biologists Bill Buck and Beth Herr contributed more than 1,000 hours of field work and analysis over a three-year period to create a biodiversity index documenting numerous species of plants, mammals, birds, fish and insects that may be found in Kent's diverse habitats. They were assisted by other volunteer naturalists and scientists who participated in field work in Kent and/or helped to identify and catalogue specimens.

The document is illustrated with photos provided by town residents.

The draft NRI was presented to the public and to various governing boards and committees for feedback, ensuring transparency and community involvement in the process. After rigorous review and compliance with DEC requirements, the Kent Town Board approved and adopted the NRI, along with an appended biodiversity inventory.

"The adoption of the NRI underscores our commitment to responsible stewardship of Kent's natural resources," said KCAC Chairman Bill Volckmann. "This comprehensive inventory will serve as a vital tool for informed decisionmaking, guiding land use planning, zoning decisions and environmental protection efforts."

The NRI will be utilized by town boards, committees, agencies and the public to support informed decision-making processes. It will be regularly updated and made available to the public, reinforcing transparency and accessibility.

The Kent Town Board extended its gratitude to all those involved in the development of the NRI and the accompanying biodiversity inventory, including members of the KCAC, the NRI Steering Committee, volunteer naturalists and scientists, community contributors, Hudsonia Ltd. staff, and the DEC Hudson River Estuary Program.

See 'Noises Off' in Carmel

The Brewster Theater Company's zany production of Michael Frayn's "Noises Off" opens Friday, April 19, and runs for three weekends at the Theater at Drew Methodist Church, 28 Gleneida Ave., Carmel.

Tickets are available at www. brewstertheater.org, or at the door.

Performances take place at 7:30 p.m. April 19, 20, 26 and 27, and May 3 and 4; and at 2 p.m. April 28 and May 5.

The play is directed and produced by Bob Dumont and stagemanaged by Karen Tunney, both of Patterson. Chris Gillespie of Carmel is the assistant director.

Dumont describes "Noises Off" as the most challenging play he has ever been involved with.

"The onstage mayhem coupled with building a monster of a spinning set has been an all-consuming process for so many of us at BTC," he said. "And I know the audience is going to enjoy and appreciate the levity of the chaos and the pretty impressive scenery."

When the characters of Tony Award-winning playwright Frayne's "Noises Off" rehearse and perform in a doomed tour of a farce called "Nothing On," everything that can go wrong does in a production described by New Yorker Magazine as "sublime chaos."

The production features Christopher Gladysz and Paul Stein of Brewster; Stacy Dumont, Rob Dumont and Adam Browne of Patterson; John Palacio and David Nielsen of Westchester; Yelena Bregman of Carmel; Maddie Landau of Rock Tavern; and Jessica Beitscher of Mohegan Lake.

"Noises Off" is presented by arrangement with Concord Theatricals on behalf of Samuel French, Inc.

Curzio Seeks Re-Election to Carmel School Board

Dear Editor:

I am proud to announce my candidacy for re-election to the Carmel School Board.

During my two terms as your school board trustee, I can report that I have worked tirelessly to fulfill my campaign promises to oppose any unnecessary tax increases on the people of our district, who are already severely overburdened with excessively high taxes.

Our district's current fiscal crisis was not brought about because our community was taxed too little. This present crisis was brought about because the Carmel Central School District spends too much and has spent too much for too many years, despite all the warnings.

I wear it as a badge of honor that I am the only Carmel School Board member in the district's history that was brought up on failed removal charges for my instrumental role in defeating two tax-and-spend bond referendums, which were not necessary for this school district and would have resulted in massive tax increases.

Additionally, I have opposed irresponsible high-tax budgets. I have also been willing to work with my colleagues to deliver several other budget proposals that incorporated my proposed savings and benefited our students and overall community.

Last year, I led the effort to repeal the infamous transportation facility bond. The repeal represented $7.4 million never being billed to our already overtaxed community.

In conjunction with repealing the bond, I supported the authorization of a contract of sale for the associated land for $3.4 million, which ensures that our taxpayers are protected and places that land back on the tax rolls.

I remain steadfast in my commitment to fiscal responsibility and against unnecessary tax increases. I also remain fully committed to keeping you, the taxpayers of our district, fully informed of what this school board is doing with your hard-earned tax dollars.

Most importantly, I have met my commitment to ensure our students receive the education they are entitled to, and deserve, in the Carmel Central School District. To this end, I fought this year to ensure kindergarten would never be on the chopping block during school budget debates, while also supporting the inclusion of field trips, clubs, sports, the Carmel High School Alternative High School program, and music and art programs.

I look forward to seeing you on the campaign trail soon, and I would be honored to earn your support in the upcoming school board election Tuesday, May 21.

Moratorium: Why not us?

Dear Editor:

Throughout NYS since early 2023, there has been a growing public health/safety concern in regard to battery energy storage systems (BESS).

In March 2023, the Southold Town Board approved a 12-month moratorium on BESS facilities. On March 29, 2024, they extended their widely supported moratorium for an additional 12 months. The Southampton Town Board enacted a six-month BESS moratorium in August 2023 and renewed it for an additional six months in February 2024. Brasher, in October 2023, placed a 12-month moratorium on BESS facilities.

In addition, numerous municipalities are drawing up their own regulations to govern this new technology of battery storage systems. Early this year, the "will of the people" won in Raquette Lake; National Grid stated recently, "plans for their battery energy storage facility in Raquette Lake was scrapped."

Despite contributing to cleaner energy, these battery systems are uniquely susceptible to extreme weather conditions, possibly causing environmental hazards. Lightning strikes, heavy rain, wildfires and other weather events can all cause these batteries to malfunction. Lithium cells can experience thermal runaway, which causes them to release very hot, flammable, toxic gases.

In large storage systems, failure of one lithium cell can cascade to include hundreds of individual cells. The hot, flammable gases can result in an explosion, or a very difficult fire to extinguish.

It is now time the Carmel Town Board explain why, in early 2023, it did not consider a moratorium and is still not considering a moratorium. The number-one responsibility of the town board is the safety and well-being of the residents and business owners.

Write to the Carmel Town Board requesting a moratorium. It is the "will of the people."

Mahopac Man Faces Child Porn Charges

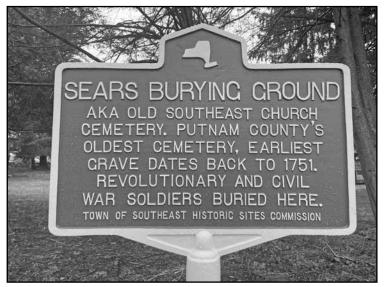

A Mahopac resident was arrested last month by the Putnam County Sheriff's Office for allegedly possessing child pornography.

According to Sheriff Kevin McConville, beginning in February, members of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation began a probe after receiving information that a Carmel resident was in possession of images of "child sexual abuse material."

The BCI executed multiple search warrants with the assistance of electronics storage detection K9 Hannah. On March 29, 53-year-old John Towers was arrested and charged with two counts of promoting a sexual performance by a child and three counts of possessing a sexual performance by a child, both felonies; as well as one count of endangering the welfare of a child, a misdemeanor.

He was arraigned in Carmel Town Court and remanded to the Putnam County Correctional Facility in lieu of $50,000 cash bail or $100,000 bond.

Sears Burying Ground to Get Historic Marker

The unveiling of a new historic marker for the Sears Burying Ground, also known as the Old Southeast Church Cemetery, is scheduled April 27.

By Jack Alcott

The Sears Burying Ground, also known as the Old Southeast Church Cemetery – the site of the oldest marked grave in Putnam County, dating back to 1751 and the resting place of Revolutionary and Civil War veterans – has a new historic marker. An unveiling, sponsored by the Town of Southeast and the Historic Sites Commission, is scheduled Saturday, April 27 at 3 p.m.

The cemetery, located at 1601 Route 22, is just north of the Red Rooster diner.

The iconic blue-and-yellow metal signs mark several other historic sites around Southeast and Brewster – and the county – and highlight important people, places and events around New York State.

Many of Southeast's earliest settlers are interred at the cemetery, and it includes family plots and monuments engraved with many old names, such as Barnum, Crane, Crosby and Kent. The oldest marked grave is that of Abigail Moss Kent, wife of Elisha Kent, who died in January 1751 at age 33.

The recently restored and reunited gravestones of Revolutionary War hero and militia Captain Jedidiah Wood and his wife, Abigail, are also on view at the burying ground. Wood is famous for helping to take wounded American soldiers along a trail in what is now Brewster village to a field hospital in Danbury.

The oldest marked grave in Putnam County is at the Sears Burying Ground in Southeast. It belongs to Abigail Kent, wife of Elisha Kent, who died in 1751.

Abigail's 1815 tombstone vanished in the late 1970s from a family graveyard on the Woods' former farm behind Marvin Mountain. The stone was discovered in the woods near Tonetta Lake in 2022 and was later erected next to her husband's at the Old Southeast Church Cemetery, aka Sears Burying Ground.

The Woods' bodies remain in unmarked graves at the old farmstead near Nelson Boulevard.

Spring Cleaning

If spring cleaning is on your list, then it may be a good time to take it into your kitchen. Whether it's to consume the make ahead winter casseroles you froze, reorganize your pantry, or to simply see what your family has pushed to the back of the fridge, a deep kitchen clean out is essential.

How long can I freeze food? While it's tempting to leave frozen foods for months (or years), most items will lose their quality. Ground meat can be stored for three-four months, but bread tends to last for up to three months. While most casseroles are good for up to six months, this may be a good time to enjoy dishes that you're not likely to enjoy on a hot summer day.

Is this still good? This is the question that comes up most when cleaning out the kitchen. The next question is "is this actually expired?". The dates on product packages can be confusing for sure. In most cases, they let you know how the quality of the product is changing (not safety). Here is a simple guide:

"Best if Used By/Before" date indicates when a product will be of best flavor or quality. It is not a purchase or safety date.

"Sell-By" date tells the store how long to display the product for sale for inventory management. It is not a safety date.

"Use-By" date is the last date recommended for the use of the product while at peak quality. It is not a safety date.

Do I have to throw out this sauce or marinade? Once opened, jarred sauce is good for less than a week, while marinades can last up

What about spices? Spices and herbs won't "go bad" but will lose their flavor and potency. Dried herbs tend to decline faster (onethree years) than ground herbs (two-three years). Whole or unground spices will last the longest (up to four years). Store them in a cool, dark, dry place to make them last longer.

Obituary

Corinne P. Greenberg

Corinne Phyllis Greenberg died in Miami, Fla., on March 17, 2024, from natural causes. She was 95 years old.

Passionate about the power of the arts, medicine and education to enrich the lives of so many, she was a dedicated philanthropist and volunteer who felt a profound obligation to improve the world around her. Perhaps most importantly, Corinne was a devoted wife, mother, grandmother and greatgrandmother whose love and empathy defined the larger Greenberg family for decades.

Known to her family and friends as "Corky," Corinne believed deeply in the importance of philanthropy as a way to enhance the lives of the underprivileged. As long-time directors of The Starr Foundation, she and her husband, Maurice R. Greenberg, sought to support countless medical, social and cultural institutions around the world, but particularly in New York City where she and her husband proudly resided.

The breadth and depth of her philanthropic activities were a sign of her true focus on having a tangible impact above anything else. In fact, to those who knew her closely, she was regularly self-effacing, eschewing the publicity that such charitable efforts often draw. However, there were some causes and organizations that were especially close to her heart.

Corinne was chairperson of the National Board of Young Audiences/Arts-for-Learning, having started serving on its board in 1984. As a strong proponent of public education, she cherished this work because she believed in the transformative power the performing arts can have on children from all walks of life. She wanted students to have as much exposure as possible to the arts because of the joy it brings and

'Showcase of the Stars' Dazzles in Brewster

While the dancers of Seven Stars School of Performing Arts in Brewster have an annual showcase and recital, this year, a special event was orchestrated just for the performance teams, as a sort of rehearsal for a bigger competition coming up in June.

"This show is their practice," said teacher Nicole Aravena.

However, the event was nothing short of professional.

Makeup and wardrobe sections filled the backstage area at the Brewster High School on March 26 and 27, while performers prepared for "Showcase of the Stars." Audiences were entertained by performances to "Me and Bobby McGee," "Man in the Mirror," "Chicago" and "What the World Needs Now" – among many others – as groups and soloists graced the stage.

"It's pride, and there's nothing better," Aravena said of watching her students perform after a year of hard work mastering their dances.

She explained that dancers go through two weeks of evaluation each May to set the casting for each team the following year.

"All of the dancers on the team compete in every single style, so they are versatile," said Aravena. "They are placed based on how they work as a team... This is the first time we are doing a show with just the performance teams."

One of those team members, senior Sarah Cassidy, has been dancing for 16 years – nine with Seven Stars.

"I love to dance because I get to see my friends every day, and everyone is here for the same reason: They love to dance," she said. "This is my chosen family. Dance has brought me many memories."

Seventh-grader Gage Delawder, who has been dancing for nine years, said tap is his favorite style – as did ninth-grader Emiko Dunn, who has been with Seven Stars for nine years, although she's been dancing for 10.

"That's what we all kind of learned first," said Dunn of tap, admitting she still gets nervous before a show or competition. "I do think that being with your group, being all together, makes you more calm."

Jordan Coates, a seventh-grader who has been dancing for 10 years, said each performance takes just as much mental preparation as it does physical. "I go through the dance as perfectly as I can in my head," he said.

Fifth-grader Hailey Zoller has been dancing for seven years. "You can attach real-life scenarios to dancing, and express yourself," she said.

Aravena praised all the dancers for putting their hearts into their performances.

"I wasn't the most flexible dancer. I couldn't hit the highest note," she said. "But I had a fire inside me... I'm a tough teacher. I definitely feel that what I'm very skilled at is lighting a fire in them."

Showcase of the Stars was a leadup to the dance company's biggest competition of the year, Kids For Kids, which donates 100 percent of funds raised to children's charities. Since its inception, KFK has donated $3 million.

Seven Stars School of Performing Arts is located at 509 Route 312, Brewster. For more information, visit sevenstarschool.com.

'Dreamscapes' at Kent Library

"Dreamscape."

An exhibit by Hillary Korn Fontana titled "Nature's Dreamscapes" is on display at the Kent Public Library throughout the month of April.

Fontana is a self-taught mixedmedia artist living in Westchester who grew up experimenting with different mediums of visual and digital arts, woodworking, glass, textiles and silversmithing. In addition, working professionally as a graphic designer for more than 20 years in the corporate and non-profit world provided support for a family and a sense of security.

However, she said creating "hands-on" artwork has allowed her more freedom of expression as an artist, and to go beyond her emotional boundaries.

"The balance and intrigue of a project comes to fruition when I can combine multi-layers of materials to create my pieces," said Fontana. "Before I start that session, I have already visualized the finished product. But sometimes it grows and evolves in a new direction, like a person with different strengths and personalities."

Group Art Show 'Moments'

Arbor Gallery invites the public to join in celebrating life's diverse moments, spanning from the ordinary to the extraordinary, the chaotic to the peaceful, and the nostalgic to the unexpected through "Moments." The exhibit showcasing works by 40 artists is on display through April 26, inside Promenade on 6, 1875 Route 6, Carmel.

"This exhibition will feature artwork in various mediums and price ranges for all to appreciate," said curator and gallery owner Kelly Edwards. "To truly immerse in the 'Moments' theme, artists have been invited to create at the gallery during the exhibition period, which I'm incredibly excited about for all involved."

To access a schedule of the artists participating in the live art sessions at the gallery, visit www. arborgallery.art. This presents a unique chance for patrons and art appreciators to witness art creation in real-time and gain insights into artists' processes and inspirations. The schedule is regularly updated, so keep an eye out for new live art sessions scheduled during the exhibition dates.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, noon to 7 p.m. Friday, and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. For more information call 845-704-4384.

Hillary Korn Fontana

As a hearing-impaired person, Fontana said she uses her artwork to create communication.

"The silence allows me to focus on how to connect with my audience by using colors, textures or even words," she said. "I want the viewer to feel raw emotion and self-reflection, thus creating their internal conversation."

Pinwheels for Prevention

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month, and last week, Putnam County continued its tradition of planting a large community pinwheel garden in front of the Sybil Ludington statue at Lake Gleneida in Carmel to raise awareness. This month – and all throughout the year – the Child Advocacy Center encourages all individuals and organizations to play a role in making Putnam a better place for children and families, ensuring parents have the knowledge, skills and resources they need to care for their children.

Changing seasons brings woes for those suffering from allergies

While spring brings on warmer temperatures, longer days and blooming foliage, it can also bring on seasonal allergies. With preventative measures and treatment, people can find ways to lessen bothersome allergy symptoms.

What causes seasonal allergies?

When the body's immune system reacts to something in the environment, seasonal allergies can develop. They usually occur during spring/summer due to the presence of specific types of vegetation (e.g., trees, flowers, grass).

What are some of the common symptoms of seasonal allergies?

Common symptoms of allergies include itchy/watery eyes, runny nose, congestion and sneezing. Asthma attacks may also occur in people who suffer from asthma and in those who are triggered by pollen.

How can you prevent/lessen your allergy symptoms?

Some common treatments for allergies include taking oral antihistamines and nasal corticosteroids. Reducing exposure to allergens/avoiding allergen triggers can also greatly reduce allergy symptoms.

The CDC recommends:

- Avoid touching your eyes while outside
- Wash your hands when you go back inside
- Keep windows closed during pollen season
- Use high-efficiency filters in your home's heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) system

Alliance Seeks to Reduce Overdose

jority of overdose deaths involve opioids, deaths involving synthetic opioids and stimulants have increased in recent years, according to the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention.

While the rate of opioid overdose deaths in Putnam varies greatly from year to year, data shows a general upward trend in opioid overdose deaths from 2010 to 2021, and people who have had at least one overdose are more likely to have another.

These factors represent the driving force behind the establishment of The BRIDGE Alliance a year ago, with the mission of creating a sustainable and equitable community of providers and residents to expand person-centered services, enhance awareness and promote health and safety for people who use drugs.

"We all have different professional and personal experiences that led us to this alliance, but we have a clear shared goal to reduce overdoses in Putnam," said Shanna Siegel, supervisor for health education for the Putnam County Health Department. "In commitment to this goal, we will continue discussing challenging and even systemic issues, such as acknowledging disparities and identifying barriers to achieving better physical and mental health."

Chorale.

Jendras is also a soprano with the chorale and a classically-trained pianist and piano/vocal coach, and was director of the chorale's 2022 and 2023 summer ensemble.

Cinque has performed frequently in the Hudson Valley, not only with Old Exit 19, but also with the groups Jammers & Company and Fast, Cheap and Loud. His composing/writing credits include the off-off-Broadway musicals "Pheenom" and "Mother Luna."

Also performing April 21 will be harpist Sr. Denise Robillard and violinist Louise Farber.

Tickets may be reserved for $10 at www.facebook.com/Old-Exit19 to pick up at "will call," or at the event for $20.

coordinator, said advocates hope these meetings, and this work, will remain a safe space where people can speak freely and respectfully, while also understanding that the language used matters, and words have power.

"We encourage our partners to embrace person-centered approaches to prevention, education, harm-reduction, treatment and recovery work — in mental health as well as substance use," she said.

The BRIDGE Alliance has expanded since it was launched in March 2023. The steering committee meets monthly and includes representatives from Putnam County's Department of Health; Department of Mental Health, Social Services & the Youth Bureau; coroner's office; sheriff's office; HIDTA; the Prevention Council of Putnam; and the Philipstown Behavioral Health Hub.

The expanded alliance, which now meets twice annually, includes the Department of Corrections, Veterans Service Agency, Office for Individuals With Disabilities, and 911. Community partners represent local organizations including Putnam/Northern Westchester BO-CES, school districts, law enforcement agencies, Putnam/Northern Westchester Women's Resource Center, the Mental Health Association-Putnam, CoveCare Center, People USA, Green Chimneys, Child Advocacy Center, Putnam Community Action Partnership and Putnam Hospital.

The BRIDGE Alliance encourages anyone struggling or who loves someone struggling with mental health or substance use challenges to reach out for help. Resources for Putnam residents can be found at https://putnamcountyny.com/thebridge.

will come in the form of state and federal aid, which make up about $31.4 million, as well as miscellaneous revenue from local sources that make up $3 million, and $2.3 million coming from the fund balance.

Karlsson said all the districts in Westchester and Putnam share their budget information, and Brewster is in line with neighboring districts' spending.

"We just happen to be directly in the middle of all of those ranges of schools throughout Westchester and Putnam, both with regard to budget-to-budget increase as well as our proposed tax levy," he said.

Karlsson said one of the biggest revenue drivers is interest, thanks to the Federal Reserve increasing the interest rate to 5.25 percent, meaning the district is earning a lot more on money it has in the bank.

In addition, future state aid increases are anticipated. "We are fortunate, where we are seeing a slight increase of about 3 percent," he explained.

Karlsson also said he is pleased the district is relying less on its reserves.

"For this year's budget we are actually reducing our reliance on our savings to balance our budget, which is a good thing, because we are able to provide future stability should we need it in a leaner year," he said

Outgoing Superintendent of Schools Dr. Laurie Bandlow noted that the budget comes with no staffing cuts. "We are maintaining our staffing level attained in the last five years," she said.

Karlsson added that this is the sixth year the district has also been able to add to its programing.

"It's really a restoration of where we were in the early 2000s, and we're finally at a level where we should have always been during those lean years, when the state was not affording us the Foundation Aid that was due to us," he said.

In addition, thanks to steadily declining enrollment over the past 20 years – about 1 percent each year – the district is able to maintain smaller class sizes. It is also continuing its pre-kindergarten program.

School board member Jamie Callanan expressed concern over the $4 million budget increase.

"Last year we did a zero tax levy increase, which was great, but we also got a slew of new bodies (staff) because of Foundational Aid ($85 million)," she said.

However, she suggested that, while the district claims certain expenditures are beyond its control – such as rising health insurance premiums for employees and pension contributions for retirees – the district can, in fact, control that spending by not increasing staffing, especially considering enrollment is on the decline.

"We always go back to the fact that the one thing we can control is the one thing we can't control... Yet, we're adding bodies," she said. "I have a big concern on continuing to go back to the community with large expenditures when we have a declining

Karlsson, however, said that maintaining staffing while enrollment declines "has assisted us in getting to a point where we now have desirable class sizes."

"Our budget is a balanced budget," he said. "We're not in a position where we are deficit spending or we're seeing recuring deficits. We are in sound financial condition and we will continue to be that way until something really big and unforeseen comes. As a matter of planning, I think we would be foolish to short ourselves now in anticipation of future problems that may never come to be."

Karlsson pointed to nearby Mount Vernon, which is in trouble because it hasn't raised taxes in five years and is now in "dire straits."

"We probably levy far less than the tax cap allows more so than any other district, and we've done it in a responsible way," he said. "There is not a school district in New York State that is not increasing property taxes."

School Board President Kerry Cunningham said she is happy with what the proposed budget provides to students.

"For years and years we weren't able to meet various mandates that leave a group of our students not receiving the services they are entitled to, and we have finally gotten to the point where we can address some of those and we need to keep doing that," she said. "Of course people don't want to spend more money, but there's a lot going on there for that money."
